JACKSON TESTIFIES M'CULLOCH ORDERED PETITIONS THEFT

MOVEMENT AT WEIMAR IN FAVOR OF ACCEPTANCE

Some Socialists and Democrats in Assembly Said to Be Working for Signing While Peace Delegates Recommend Rejection of the Terms.

PREMIERS OF SOUTH GERMANY CALLED IN

Sentiment in Berlin for Signing—Spartanists Attack Castle at Weimar and Others Attack the City.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—A pronounced movement in the ranks of the majority members of the Assembly at Weimar in favor of signing the treaty is reported, in a dispatch received here late tonight. Sentiment among the Clericals and left wing Democrats under the leadership of Baron von Richthofen is also reported to be crystallizing in that direction.

The German peace delegates have drafted a memorandum recommending that the Cabinet refuse to sign the peace treaty, according to a Weimar dispatch to the Zeitung am Mittag.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Tagblatt said, will resign, as well as the other members of the delegation unless this view is adopted.

The Premiers of Bavaria, Württemberg, Baden and Saxony have arrived at Weimar.

"Sign the treaty and be through with the agony," is the gist of the comment of the people of Berlin today.

After the wrath provoked by the moral indictment contained in the covering note of the allied German residents of Berlin seemed to have resigned themselves to the inevitable.

"Rather the end with terror than terror without end," was the way one merchant put it today.

Cabinet Awaits Conference With South German Premiers.

WEIMAR, June 18.—The Cabinet today debated the peace terms. It was officially announced that no decision had been arrived at. The Cabinet probably is awaiting the result of a conference of the allied German Premiers with the Government.

There will be no further Cabinet sitting until Thursday.

The full original French text of the Entente agreement, including the covering note, has been finished by the printers. The Government received Premier Clemenceau's apology for the stoning of members of the German peace delegation at Versailles.

The special train bringing Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and his colleagues from Versailles reached Weimar and was run into a siding shortly after midnight. Government troops which were arriving to strengthen the city's protection were marching through the dark streets to their quarters when the train rolled in. Suddenly the silence was broken by the clatter of machine guns repelling the Spartan and Communist attack on the castle where members of the Government are quartered.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau remained on board his train until after breakfast. The delegation was angry at the hostile attack made upon it at Versailles, in which a considerable number, instead of three, as at first reported, were more or less seriously injured.

The Italian and French officers who accompanied the German delegation as far as Cologne were profuse in their apologies for the incident and said the police at Versailles had been unreliable since the strike, but the German delegates suspected the attack to have been deliberately planned.

The casualties in the fighting at the castle were five Spartacists and one Government guard, while 28 Spartacists were captured. The men who attacked the castle had hidden a number of loaded rifles in the bushes surrounding it.

Later in the night further shooting continued on page 3, column 3.

WESTERN UNION MAILED 'TELEGRAMS' TO BEAT STRIKERS

Post-Dispatch Finds Company Collects Full Tolls for Deliveries at Total Cost to Itself of 3-Cent Stamp.

CHIEF OPERATOR ADMITS PRACTICE

He Says Railroad Operators Won't Handle Messages; Postal Manager Denies Similar Charge.

Investigation by a Post-Dispatch reporter has disclosed that since the telegraphers' strike the Western Union Telegraph Co. has been collecting full tolls for "telegrams" to certain points which it delivers direct to the addressee by mail at a cost to itself of a 3-cent stamp, and in some cases the addition of a 10-cent special delivery stamp. In such instances no refund is made to the sender.

G. R. Alger, chief operator of the Western Union here, admitted the company was delivering some "telegrams" by mail to towns where members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers refuse to receive the messages because of a grievance against the company, but that such business is accepted subject to delay on account of the strike condition.

When such "telegrams" are sent by mail the following note or one similar to it is attached:

"This telegram is mailed to you because the railroad operators at your town refused to receive it by telegraph."

A similar charge was made against the Postal Telegraph Co. by two of its striking operators, Roy Weeks, 34 years old, of 6612 Hancock avenue, and S. L. Kattich, 18, of 2333 South Twelfth street. Weeks said:

"Last Saturday evening about 500 night letters and day messages, dated June 11 and 12, destined by the graphic transmission to St. Louis, were by train from New York and were copied from the original forms to receiving blanks in the local postal office, so as to be made to appear as having come by telegraph. I was on duty in the postal office at the time and saw 10 operators prepare the messages for delivery."

Operator Confirms: Manager Denies. Kattich confirmed Weeks' statement and added that he was one of the operators who assisted in copying the "telegrams" from the original blanks. Kattich said 12 operators were held after 5 p. m. for the train bringing the "telegrams" from the East, which was late, arriving at 6:45 p. m., and that the men worked until 10 p. m. preparing the messages for delivery.

W. W. Morrison, local manager of the Postal Telegraph Co., when told of the statements of Weeks and Kattich, said they were false and designed to hurt the company.

"We have not placed any telegrams in the mail," Morrison declared. "We have an adequate force of operators and our business is being moved without delay."

Morrison conducted the reporter through the company's offices.

PICKED U. S. REGIMENT FOR INTERALLIED GAMES AT PARIS

Americans From Third Army Will Vie With French Units at Opening Sunday.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 19.—The regiment of picked men from the American Third Army, which was organized to act as Gen. Pershing's bodyguard on his projected visits to London and Brussels, has arrived here from Cologne, and will vie with picked French units at the opening of the Pershing stadium on Sunday.

The full list of the French entries for the inter-allied games was issued today, and is headed by Georges Carpentier of the French Aviation Corps, heavyweight champion boxer of Europe. Carpentier, who has been in active training since the armistice, will have at the stadium his first battle since before the war, when he knocked out Bombarier Wells of England, in the fifth round of their bout.

The Italian sports delegation has announced that the King of Italy will offer a prize in the form of a bronze statue, while the Italian Minister of War will offer another prize.

FLIGHT OF R-34 POSTPONED UNTIL GERMANY GIVES DECISION

British Dirigible Awaits Enemy's Action on Peace Before Sailing for America.

LONDON, June 19.—The flight of the British dirigible R-34 to America is definitely postponed until Germany decides what she intends to do regarding the peace terms.

The grand fleet has again been placed on a war footing. It is reported, and ready to sail for German waters at a moment's notice. It is stated that the R-34 has been sent to the Baltic, while her companion aircraft, the R-33, similarly equipped, departed Wednesday night for a cruise, which will include the Kiel Canal. A telegram from Copenhagen reports the arrival there of a dozen British cruisers and several destroyers prepared to enforce the blockade. The Daily Sketch says the British fleet is expected to arrive in the Baltic on Wednesday afternoon.

The airships, which now are engaged in a demonstration flight over Germany, will return to their bases tonight and will not leave until German decision is announced.

PRESIDENT IS IN BRUSSELS, GUEST OF KING ALBERT

Luncheon at the American Legation and a Reception by Cardinal Mercier on Today's Program.

HE AND MRS. WILSON VISIT RUINED REGION

American Executive Deeply Affected by Devastation—Ypres, Ostend and Zeebrugge Visited.

By the Associated Press. BRUSSELS, June 19.—President Wilson, who reached the Belgian capital last night after a day's trip from the border which took him through the districts devastated by the war, began the second day of his visit to Belgium this morning by motor to Charleroi with King Albert.

The King expected to show the American executive the destruction wrought by the Germans in the wholesale and systematic destruction practiced by the Germans.

The President was accompanied on the Charleroi visit by Mrs. Wilson, who was somewhat fatigued after yesterday's trying journey.

A luncheon at the American Legation, the appearance of the President before the Belgian Chamber of Deputies and his reception by Cardinal Mercier at Malines are a few of the features on today's program which will take up his time until late at night. He is expected to deliver at least three addresses today.

The President and King Albert set out on their trip to Charleroi at 9 o'clock. They were accompanied by M. Jaspard, the Minister of Economics, and a numerous suite.

Crowd Clamors for Speech. Stepping into the palace this morning, the President found several thousands of persons assembled there who clamored for a speech. He responded with his first public talk, which was confined to a few words.

"My friends," said the President, "in coming here personally I am merely following my own heart and the heart of the American people towards Belgium."

In the palace the President had met all the members of the Belgian Cabinet and Cardinal Mercier. By the Cardinal offered the President a diplomatic route for the President's call upon him at Malines today.

The general council of the Belgian Labor party has addressed a note to President Wilson, in which it says:

"The Labor party repudiates any peace of violence and awaits the reign of a definite peace assuring the rights of labor and the triumph of President Wilson's principles."

The address recalls the intervention of the United States in the war and adds:

"If the working classes everywhere were masters of their destinies, it is beyond doubt that the President's program would have completely triumphed at the peace conference and Belgium would have obtained complete reparation for the losses she suffered."

Evidence of Vandalism. Flaming hand evidence of German vandalism was given the President at Charleroi. He was taken to the mines at Marchienne, near Charleroi, where circumstantial evidence was supplemented by records showing that machinery had been removed wholesale.

The President is scheduled for a return at 12:30 o'clock the luncheon given by Minister Whitlock at the American legation and a reception by the American colony an hour later. After 20 minutes to receiving Belgian journalists, the President will confer before the Chamber of Deputies.

The President will also go to Louvain and then to Malines to see Cardinal Mercier at the peace conference. The President will consist of more or less informal functions at the palace, a reception to the diplomatic corps and a formal dinner by King Albert.

Belgium Expresses Gratitude. Belgium's gratitude for America's work of relief during the great war and for the gallant service of the American Army during the last months of the conflict was expressed by Paul Hyma's, Foreign Minister, on the occasion of President Wilson's visit to the Belgian Parliament.

Addressing Mr. Wilson, the Minister recalled proof of America's friendship for Belgium which were given him when he visited the United States during the first few months of the war as a member of the Belgian

OPERA PROCEEDS THROUGH RAIN, FEW OF 2000 PERSONS LEAVING

Miss Stella de Mette, St. Louis Mezzo-Soprano, Arrives for "The Bohemian Girl" Next Week.

Despite thunder, lightning and rain during two of the three acts of "The Bohemian Girl" last night at the Municipal Theater, both performers and audience, the latter numbering some 2000, endured to the end. Open-air opera fans have learned that umbrellas are more essential than opera glasses, and hundreds of the coverings were unfurled. There were patters of rain during the first act, and smart showers during the second, but the weather cleared for the final act. Few of the spectators left the theater.

Tonight, weather permitting, the performance will be under the auspices of the Rotary Club. Miss Stella de Mette, St. Louis mezzo-soprano and member of the San Carlo Opera Co., arrived last night for rehearsals of next week's production, "The Bohemian Girl," in which she will have the part of the Gypsy Queen.

Tickets which were not used last night may be exchanged for admissions Friday night, it was announced today.

HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR RETURN OF WIRE SYSTEMS

Reconsiders Its Action Extending Higher Telegraph Rates for Six Months.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 19.—After reconsidering its action extending Government fixed telegraph rates for six months, the House today without a record vote passed the amended Senate bill providing for return of the telegraph and telephone properties to private control and repealing the law under which those properties and the cable systems were taken over by the President.

"They told me they wanted to confer with me and I invited them into the house. They related some of the detailed circumstances of the referendum petitions burglary which I had not known before, and which I was very much interested in hearing."

"Did what you heard from them last night cause you to decide whether you would again go before the grand jury?" he was asked.

"I don't want to talk about that at this time," he replied. "Future action before the grand jury depends upon what Jackson and Brady testify to in the receivership case. I shall reserve any statement as to my future plans until I receive a transcript of their testimony."

U. S. SELLS AIRPLANES FOR $200

Four Per Cent of Cost Obtained for 1100 Machines.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 19.—The Government has received 12 per cent of the original cost in airplane sales, according to an official report. Eleven hundred standard J-1 planes were sold for $200 each, about 4 per cent of the cost; 1616 JN-4 planes brought $400 each, or 8 per cent, and 4600 Curtiss motors were sold for $400 each, or 19 per cent.

The Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Co. purchased the entire lot.

5 MEALS A DAY FOR HARVESTERS

Five meals a day and wages of $2.50 and $2.75 are offered by St. Clair County farmers in an effort to obtain help for harvesting and other farm work. This announcement has been made by Farm Advisor W. B. Tillman of Belleville, who is at the head of the St. Clair County Farm Bureau. He has placed 20 men in two days and has calls for many more.

The laborers are served breakfast, 9 o'clock luncheon, dinner, 3 o'clock luncheon and supper. It is said that country ham, eggs, bacon, butter and milk are provided.

QUOTES HIM AS SAYING "BRING THE SAFE TO ME"

Tells How He Hired "Strong Arm Men" and "Safe Men" for Job, and of Previous Plot to Slug Officials of Referendum League.

WITNESS AT HEARING OF INTERVENING PLEA

States He Tapped Telephone in Office of League; Outlines Duties as Special Agent of U. R.; Says Priest Got Him Job.

Julius Caesar Jackson, former chief special agent of the United Railways Company, testified today before Special Master Lamf, in the seaman receivership and accounting suit against the company, that Richard McCulloch, president of the company, told him to get the referendum petitions against the United Railways franchise ordinance. Jackson has admitted that he employed the men who committed the burglary and theft of the petitions a year ago, and he testified today that he talked with McCulloch about the details of the burglary.

He connected McCulloch and Bruce Cameron, superintendent of transportation, throughout his testimony, with the petitions job and with his story of a previous plot to slug members of the Referendum League and take the petitions away from them, and with other acts which he characterized as "rough stuff." He said McCulloch declared to Cameron and himself that they had failed in the strike (of February, 1918) and that they must get the final referendum petitions, or "somebody will be hunting a job." Jackson said he took this to mean Cameron and himself.

Later, he testified, McCulloch "suggested" getting the referendum petitions from the safe in the Cigar Makers' Union, at 615 Chestnut street, where they were known to be kept. He quoted McCulloch as saying that if the men employed could not work the combination of the safe, they would have to get the papers any way they could.

Talked Over Details. Jackson said he conferred with McCulloch about the details of the robbery, and that when he reported to him that the men demanded $1500 for opening the safe, McCulloch said he would not pay it, and told Jackson to bring him the safe, and he (McCulloch) would open it himself. He said he reported to McCulloch that the same story which he told today in building, who was implicated in the plot, objected to the safe being blown, and that McCulloch asked why one of Jackson's men did not "hit him over the head and go ahead with it."

Jackson told of attempts to buy officials of the Referendum League, and of installing a dictaphone in the league's office and tapping a telephone wire there. He said he carried out these moves in consultation with McCulloch and Cameron.

Jackson is the chief witness against Cameron, whose trial on a charge of burglary and larceny is pending in the Reynolds County Circuit Court at Centerville, on a charge of venue. Cameron was indicted on Jackson's testimony, but no other official of the United Railways was indicted, although presumably Jackson told the grand jury virtually the same story which he told today.

Jackson recently published a book, containing his story of the burglary, and of the company's previous maneuvers to prevent the formation of a union of its employees.

Witness for Intervenor. Edwin Corley, chief clerk in Cameron's office, who was named by Jackson in his testimony as having known of some of the inner details of his employment by the company, was at the hearing, and it was anticipated that he would be called as a witness and questioned as to parts of Jackson's testimony. James Brady, a claim agent, who figures in Jackson's story of the company's negotiations with him after the bur-

M'DANIEL TO STUDY JACKSON TESTIMONY

Another Grand Jury Investigation Considered in Light of Latest Revelations.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter whether the United Railways referendum petition burglary, for which Bruce Cameron, superintendent of transportation, was indicted last summer, would again be presented to a grand jury, in view of testimony today in the receivership case by Julius Caesar Jackson, former chief special agent, that Richard McCulloch, president of the company, had told Jackson to get the referendum petitions.

The Circuit Attorney refused to give a direct answer to the question, though he said Jackson, several hours before going on the stand in the receivership case, had given him information which he previously had withheld.

"Jackson and Brady, claim agent for the company, came to my home about midnight last night," the Circuit Attorney said. "As I drove up to my house on my return from the Municipal opera they drove up behind me."

"They told me they wanted to confer with me and I invited them into the house. They related some of the detailed circumstances of the referendum petitions burglary which I had not known before, and which I was very much interested in hearing."

"Did what you heard from them last night cause you to decide whether you would again go before the grand jury?" he was asked.

gave Ed Corley my address and he would sign his letters "Ed." "What action did you take?" "I told my sister I was going to Jefferson City and would call Cameron on the telephone."

Tells of Trip to Illinois. "What conversation did you have with Cameron on the telephone?" "He told me they had nothing on me, but had my description, and he told me to go to the capital of the adjoining State. I asked him which way and he said east. So I started to Springfield, Ill., by auto. I got to Jacksonville at night and went to Springfield in the morning. From Jacksonville I called up a friend and he told me they had discovered my part in the theft. I told him to go to the United Railways and tell them to call me later."

"Who called?" "Cameron. He told me to go to Chicago. He told me to leave my auto in Springfield and take a train and go to the Morrison Hotel and stay at W. B. Wilson, and a chain agent would meet me next morning at 8 o'clock."

"When did you go to the Morrison?" "At 7 a. m."

"Did you register?" "I registered on a card."

"How?" "As W. B. Wilson."

"At Hotel in Chicago." "Did you see anyone connected with the United Railways Co.?" "When I came out for breakfast I was being paid."

"How?" "As W. B. Wilson. I went to the telephone, but there was no response. As I was coming out I met Jim Brady."

"Who was Brady?" "James L. Brady."

"Do you see him here in the courtroom?" "Yes, he is sitting over there (pointing)."

"Did you know him as a United Railways representative?" "Yes, he was. We passed the time of day and took a walk to the lake front and talked about the deal."

"What did he say?" "He said: 'You've stirred up an awful mess.' He gave me some money and said: 'Mr. McCulloch has sent you $500.' It was wrapped in a newspaper."

"Where were you when you got the money?" "Sitting on a bench near the lake front."

"Was there any further conversation?" "Yes, Mr. McCulloch wanted me to go to Minneapolis, where I was to stay till this thing blew over. I was to go to the president of the street railway company there, Mr. Lowry, a personal friend of Mr. McCulloch."

"Went to Minneapolis." "I remained with Brady until he left for St. Louis on a noon train."

"Was anything said to you by Brady as to how or when you were to hear from McCulloch or Cameron?" "He told me I would receive a letter at Lowry's office in a few days from McCulloch."

"What did you do?" "I went to Minneapolis and directed by the office of Mr. Lowry."

"Did you see him?" "He was in Washington, D. C. I was told that he would be gone for a week or ten days."

"What was that?" "I do not remember the date, possibly the 20th or 21st of June. I was on a Friday."

"How long did you remain in Minneapolis?" "Until the following Sunday; a week."

"Did you hear anything further from either Cameron or McCulloch?" "Brady came to see me the following Monday."

"Where did you see him?" "At his hotel."

"How did you find him?" "He sent me a special delivery letter in care of the railway office and told me to come to the Nichols Hotel."

Used Name of Wilson. "Was he registered there?" "Yes."

"Under his own name?" "His own."

"Where were you stopping?" "At the West Hotel."

"Under what name?" "W. D. Wilson."

"What did Brady say to you?" "He said the company was through with me, and I would have to shift for myself. He talked quite a while."

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due to the action of an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and suffers should be either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with the stomach, or they can reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bismuth Tablets.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bismuth Tablets. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a detergent. It is a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five-grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. It removes the whole cause of the trouble and the next day's natural bowel movement will be without need of laxative or artificial stimulants.

along that line. He told me I was under indictment. I do not remember what he said. I asked him if they had sent me any money."

"Who do you mean by that?" "McCulloch or Cameron."

"What did Brady say?" "He said they had not sent me any money until the thing blew over in St. Louis."

Not Reimbursed for $2600. "Were you reimbursed by the United Railways for the $2600 spent on the referendum burglary?" "I was not."

"What did you do with the $500 Brady gave you?" "I used it all for expenses."

"Had you rendered any expense account in connection with the theft?" "I rendered an account of $535 the day the job was pulled off."

"Did you get that money?" "No, because pay day was not for two or three days after."

"Jackson interrupted by another question, said he had given his expense accounts to Ed Corley, a chief clerk in the offices of the United Railways Co."

"Did you ever demand that money?" Laughlin asked.

"Yes, I told Brady the company would have to pay me what it owed me or else I'd have to go to the wheat fields and work."

"What else did you say to Brady?" "O, nothing in particular, except that I tried to make him believe that I going to stay away from St. Louis."

"How long did you remain away?" "About 10 days."

References to Poison Gas. "Did you ever receive instructions from any official of the United Railways Co. relative to the use of poison gas?" Laughlin asked.

"I don't know whether I want to answer that question."

"Lamm interrupted to ask Jackson whether he claimed a witness' privilege not to incriminate himself and Jackson replied in the affirmative."

Laughlin then announced he would change the form of the question and advised the witness that he need not relate what he, himself, had done."

"Did you receive instructions from Cameron or McCulloch to procure poison gas to break up a meeting of citizens which had been called to protest against some legislation in which the company was interested?" "I did," Jackson replied.

"Where gave you those instructions?" "Cameron and McCulloch."

"When?" "In November, 1917."

"Did you get the poison gas?" "I did."

"Have you any of it now?" "I have."

"Where?" "In my room at 1007 Pine street."

To Produce Gas in Court. "You produce some of it at this afternoon's session?" "I will," Special Master Lamm, who had been reclining in a swivel chair during the testimony, leaned forward and said:

"Do you expect the master to smell this poison gas?"

"No, your honor," replied Laughlin. "I merely wish to offer it as an exhibit."

"Well," Lamm said, "I have no objection to its counsel smelling it, but I will not."

Laughlin explained that the poison gas was in tiny glass vials.

"I suppose it will be a vile exhibit," commented Lamm.

Laughlin then resumed the questioning of Jackson.

"How many of those vials did you procure?"

"Over 100. That is, of the weak and strong ones together."

Priest interrupted to say:

"Where did you get that poison gas?"

"From a chemist in Kansas City," Jackson replied.

In the discussion as to admission of Jackson's testimony, Attorney Laughlin said that he was adopting certain parts of Seaman's evidence, but not the part in which Priest's case counsel for the company were attacked. He said he approved Priest's course as counsel, and was attacking the power contracts and the slush fund.

Priest thanked him for the compliment, but renewed his argument that bondholders could intervene only when their interests were directly affected, as they would be affected by the defaulting of interest on the bonds. He also argued that the intervenors would not "place out" Seaman's case. Judge Lamm decided to hear Laughlin's evidence.

Two other attendants at the hearing who expected to be called as witnesses are George W. Baumhoff, former general manager of the St. Louis Transit Co., now part of the United Railways, who has been following the hearing on Seaman's allegations closely, and Louis H. Froke, secretary of the Citizens' Referendum League, which circulated the petitions that Jackson stole.

The decision to hear the intervenors at this time was made by Special Master Lamm when Ephrim Caplan, attorney for Seaman, declared, upon the defendants' resting their case yesterday, that he was not prepared to submit rebuttal testimony without opportunity to examine the voluminous exhibits and experts' testimony offered. Henry S. Priest and Theodore Rasmussen, defendants' attorneys, insisted that the case be closed and that the intervenors be allowed to proceed, and Lamm ordered him to be prepared to go ahead tomorrow morning.

When Caplan's rebuttal is completed, Lamm will hear the intervenors and then call for briefs. He announced that he would spend the summer examining the record and the arguments and would make his recommendations to Judge Dyer in the fall.

Testimony under the Seaman bill has been that the books of the United Railways showed that Jackson, during his nine-year employment by the company as a secret service agent, received $20,000 for expenses in addition to $9775 salary, making the total payments to him $29,875.

The vouchers used to make payments to him did not show what Jackson's expenses were for, but bore a notation "Itemized statement to Col. Cameron" (Bruce Cameron, Edwin H. Wagner, the accountant who examined the books, has testified that when he asked Cameron for the itemized account of Jackson's expenditures, Cameron told him that it was his habit to destroy Jackson's expense account after it was presented to him).

will co-operate in the work of re-constituting Belgium's moral and intellectual life. They are convinced they may rely on American aid and friendship.

Hymans spoke of the good will toward Belgium shown by the American delegates at the peace conference, and said that Belgium desired "a peace of justice and reparation."

"Certain problems of vital importance to Belgium's future are not yet solved," he said. "Belgium needs efficacious guarantees for her economic development and security. She has decided to pursue them with perseverance and vigor, and relies upon the assistance of the allies to obtain these indispensable guarantees."

"Belgium will answer definitely, and co-operate with the league of nations, having the moral authority of a people that has suffered for the right."

President and Mrs. Wilson, with King Albert and Queen Elizabeth as their guides, yesterday saw the devastation visited upon Belgium by the Germans. The first part of their visit chiefly affected not only Mr. Wilson but those accompanying him. The second phase was of an entirely different character.

In the forenoon almost no residents were encountered. In the afternoon, the appearance of the President at Ypres, Ostend, Zeebrugge, and finally Brussels was made the occasion of demonstrations that might have been accorded to a conquering hero. With the President and Mrs. Wilson were Miss Margaret Wilson, B. M. Baruch, Norman Davis, Gen. W. H. Harts, Herbert Hoover, chairman of the Inter-allied Food Commission, and Commander Baker.

UNIONS TO IGNORE
COURT INJUNCTIONSFederation Condemns
"Usurpations by Judiciary" on Grounds Such
Decrees Violate Rights.ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.
—The American Federation of Labor in a resolution adopted at its convention here today condemning what were declared to be "usurpations" by the judiciary of the Government's legislative and executive powers, recommended that organized labor should disregard injunctive decrees of courts on the ground that such decrees violated rights guaranteed under the constitution.The convention also adopted a resolution favoring the restriction of immigration during the reconstruction period.
Radical and conservative delegates attending the convention clashed again yesterday. The contest, which arose over a resolution proposing insurrection of a policy of initiative and referendum within the ranks of organized labor, was marked by a display of bitter feeling, which, as on the day before, resulted in the radical element being crushingly defeated.A vote on whether there should be a roll call on the resolution disclosed there were only 25 delegates out of about 500 favoring the measure. This was interpreted as representing even more than the maximum ratio of radicals within organized labor.
The clash developed after all the delegates, radicals as well as conservatives, had adopted unanimously
a resolution assailing Postmaster-General Burleson for "his labor policy" and calling on President Wilson to remove him.Argument of Radicals.
As soon as the initiative and referendum resolution was reported,
James Duncan of Seattle declared this measure was for the benefit of the "rank and file of workers." He accused the Resolutions Committee, which recommended nonconcurrence in the measure, of being progressive and holding the belief the rank and file was not intelligent enough to consider important questions.The delegates of the New York delegate of the theatrical stage workers, denied that organized labor was engaged in throttling new ideas, adding: "We are, however, engaged in killing so-called new ideas designed to kill the American labor organization as it is today."He asserted that he and many other delegates were convinced the labor movement would be much better off with only half as many members if all those members were loyal.He invited the "other half" to get out of organized labor and continue its efforts to bring about social revolutions outside of the organization.

"Tired of Screaming."

"We are tired," he declared, "of having you people come in here and scream about what we should do to run the Government. Those who get up here to tell us such things would do far better if they would take out citizenship papers and then they could vote."After a roar of applause, banging on tables and cheers had subsided."Curley" Grow of Los Angeles announced he wanted to be considered a radical or, rather, a "constructive radical." "I want to go forward," he cried. "Delegates have asked us to get out because they do not want to listen to us. We won't get out. I am an American and my forefathers were Americans. They fought for liberty in several wars.
They were revolutionists and I am glad of it. I suggest to both radicals and conservatives that they do not nervously themselves too much. We have just come through a trying period. We all ought to favor changes in the laws that would meet the new concept. Men become dangerous when they have not the right to express themselves. The so-called radicals now in 10 years will be considered conservatives. The initiative and referendum should be given the rank and file."

Resolutions Adopted.

J. P. Frey, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, answered all the radical arguments by pointing out that the rank and file through officers and meetings had complete opportunity to express themselves on any question and that if the initiative and referendum was practiced in organized labor it would simply furnish a means to enable certain people to call general strikes and provide an avenue through which interests unrelated to labor might get labor's support for their own pet schemes to the eventual detriment and even disintegration of organized labor itself.Among the mass of resolutions adopted was one favoring the initiative and referendum on constitutional amendments; one supporting all the legislation suggested by President Wilson in his recent messages to Congress; one favoring legislation permitting labor officers in the Government employ to have leaves of absence to attend to labor business without injury to their standing; one favoring a "living wage" for Government employees; one advocating an eight-hour day and $5 a day minimum wage for immigration and customs inspectors on the Canadian border; and one advocating the discontinuance by the Government of civil employment for men and women in the military service upon the signing of the peace treaty.Don't trust to luck in selling real

SCOTCH LAW SPOILS AMERICAN'S ROMANCE

Arkansas Lieutenant and English Girl Get Married and Into Trouble.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, June 19.—All's fair in love and war—but not in the eyes of Scotland's stern marriage law. Raymond Lee Hiles, lately an officer in the American army, has learned this to his sorrow. He languishes in an Edinburgh jail, his charming English bride, 18 years old, is returning, weeping, to her parents. In their haste to marry, the youthful pair eloped to Scotland and, that they might be united immediately, produced false testimony as to the duration of their residence there. Two hours more and they would have been sailing to America. But the long arm of the Scotch law reached out and seized them on the Olympic.

Hiles, 24 years old, was a student at an American university, it is said, until he enlisted when his country went to war. He and his bride, Margie Evelyn, were prisoners before Sheriff Croft in Edinburgh today. They were charged with suborning two hotel porters to act as witnesses at their marriage and to give false information to the effect that they had been resident in Scotland for 21 days prior to the wedding. For so the law orders.

Her Parents Demanded Delay.
On behalf of the bride and bridegroom, Solicitor J. H. Henderson said Mrs. Hiles came of a highly respectable English family. Hiles belongs to a well-known family. They met in Gloucester, England, in November, 1917, and promptly fell in love. He obtained the consent of the girl's parents to their engagement, but after his discharge from the army her parents refused to approve their marriage until she reached 21.

The young people decided to elope, and arrived in Edinburgh, where Hiles was informed they must have lived 21 days there before they could be married legally. He was anxious to protect the young lady's honor, and, therefore, approached the two porters in their hotel and asked them to act as witnesses to their marriage, which meant their swearing they had known them to have been resident in Scotland 21 days.

After the marriage Hiles booked two first-class passages on the Olympic, which was to sail from Southampton on June 6. Two hours before the vessel was to leave two Edinburgh detectives stepped on board with a warrant for the arrest of the couple.

Don't Do It Again.
Sheriff Croft passed sentence of two months' imprisonment on Hiles and dismissed his bride with an admonition, "Not guilty, but don't do it again."

The hotel porters were sentenced to one month's imprisonment each. Consul-General Skinner has interested himself in the case and probably will try to have young Hiles' sentence reduced. At the American military headquarters the Post-Dispatch correspondent was informed that Hiles was a Second Lieutenant in the 84th Aero Squadron and lived in Little Rock, Ark.

BOY JUMPS FROM MOVING BUS AND DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

Witnesses Say 12-Year-Old Caddy at Sunset Hill Country Club Fell In Front of Wheel.

Merlin Kyle, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Mattie Kyle, an invalid widow, of 3116 Walter avenue, Maplewood, died yesterday afternoon at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium from injuries suffered in the forenoon when he was run over by a motor bus in front of the Sunset Hill Country Club.

Merlin had been a caddy for golf players at the club for several years. He and seven other boys took the bus, which is operated by the club between Maplewood, Kirkwood and Sunset Hill, early yesterday morning, to serve at the Western amateur championship games.

Witnesses said that Kyle tried to alight from the truck before it had come to a stop near the links and in doing so fell in front of one of the back wheels.

WHISKY CHEAPER AS DEALERS TRY TO SELL STOCK

Retail Demand for Laid Up Against the Enforcement of Prohibition June 1 Falls Off, to Surprise Sellers.

DRINKERS GOING DRY WITH THE COUNTRY

Large Quantities of Liquor Will Be Left on Hand Local Warehouses, Revenue Collector Says.

Despite the present prospect the country will be dry after June 1, the retail demand for whisky, "stocking up" purposes has fallen off in St. Louis to such an extent that some dealers are cutting prices in an effort to close out their stock before the Federal lid goes on.

The price range on standard brands of whisky is now from $1.25 to $2.50 a quart. A month ago it was $1.75 to $3.50. Brands which were selling at $2.50 for a single quart may be purchased at $3.50 for a quart of 12 quarts, with no great rush at that price.

Dealers say they are puzzled by the apparent anomalies of the situation only 11 days before the war-prohibition act is scheduled to go into effect. They had expected a flood of orders from buyers "home consumption." This has failed to materialize and they are wondering whether this is an indication of the stocking-up process has been completed or whether it means a large number of drinkers have decided to "go dry" with the country. In any event there is no prospect of hope that the ban will be lifted, whisky, though there may be a chance that beer and light wines weather the prohibition storm.

The St. Louis Brewing Association with nine breweries, and the Independent Breweries Co., with five, have prepared to file in the United States District Court a petition asking that the Government refrain from enforcing the prohibition of the sale of 2.75 per cent. after July 1. This is similar to the suit now pending in the New York courts.

The suit will ask for injunction restraining the District Attorney, the Revenue Collector from enforcing the regulation into effect.

Much Liquor on Hand.
Liquor dealers today said there was a practical certainty that quantities of whisky would be in the hands of dealers after June 1. At the office of the Internal Revenue Collector it was said that amount of whisky in bonded warehouses in St. Louis is approximately 125,000 gallons and that the small proportion of the total amount of whisky on hand here.

Uncertainty as to the future of the liquor business is further indicated by a notice received from Washington today that internal revenue collectors may continue to issue special tax stamps, known as "Government license" retail liquor dealers on and July 1.

This notice, issued by Dag Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is as follows:

Stamp Taxes to Be Issued.

WHISKY CHEAPER AS DEALERS TRY TO SELL STOCKS

Retail Demand for Laying Up Against the Enforcement of Prohibition July 1 Falls Off, to Surprise of Sellers.

DRINKERS GOING DRY WITH THE COUNTRY

Large Quantities of Liquor
Will Be Left on Hand in Local Warehouses, Revenue Collector Says.

Despite the present prospect that the country will be dry after July 1 the retail demand for whisky for
"stocking up" purposes has fallen off in St. Louis to such an extent that some dealers are cutting prices in an effort to close out their stocks before the Federal lid goes on.

The price range on standard brands of whisky is now from $2.25 to $3 a quart. A month ago it was $2.75 to $3.50. Brands which are selling at $2.50 for a single quart may be purchased at $3 for a case of 12 quarts, with no great rush to buy at that price.

Dealers say they are puzzled by the apparent anomalies of the situation only 11 days before the war-time prohibition act is scheduled to go into effect. They had expected a flood of orders from buyers for "home consumption." This has failed to materialize and they are wondering whether this is an indication that the stocking-up process has been completed or whether it means that a large number of drinkers have decided to "go dry" with the country.

In any event there is no expression of hope that the ban will be lifted as to whisky, though there may be some chance that beer and light wines will weather the prohibition storm until next January when the constitutional amendment will go into effect.

The St. Louis Brewing Association, with nine breweries, and the Independent Breweries Co., with five, today were preparing to file in the United States District Court a petition asking that the Government be restrained from enforcing the prohibition of the sale of 2.75 per cent beer after July 1. This is similar to the suit now pending in the New York courts.

The suit will ask for injunctions restraining the District Attorney and the Revenue Collector from putting the regulation into effect.

Much Liquor on Hand.
Liquor dealers today said there was a practical certainty that large quantities of whisky would be left in the hands of dealers after July 1.
At the office of the Internal Revenue Collector it was said that amount of whisky in bonded warehouses in St. Louis is approximately 12,000 gallons and that this is a small proportion of the total amount of whisky on hand here.

Uncertainty as to the future of the liquor business is further complicated by a notice received from Washington today that internal revenue collectors may continue to issue special tax stamps, a popularly known as "Government licenses" to retail liquor dealers on and after July 1.

This notice, issued by Daniel C.
Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is as follows:

Stamp Taxes to Be Issued.
To Collectors of Internal Revenue: In view of the numerous requests received from Collectors of Internal Revenue for instructions as to the issuance of special tax stamps to liquor dealers on and after July 1, 1919, you are advised that a special tax stamp should be issued to all applicants who file form 11 and pay the tax as wholesale or retail dealers in liquor or for any of those occupations which are prohibited by the provisions of the act of Nov. 21, 1918.

The fact that these occupations are made illegal by said act on or after July 1, 1919, does not relieve those engaged in these occupations from the payment of the taxes nor make it any less the duty of the collectors and other officers to use due diligence in collecting the same. It is not deemed advisable, however, to issue the customary advance notices to persons heretofore engaged in such occupations as are prohibited after July 1, 1919, of their duty to come forward and pay the tax in the usual manner.

"All persons who purchase stamps covering occupations prohibited on or after July 1, 1919, should be warned that the possession of the stamp extends no immunity from prosecution or the penalties provided for carrying on the business in violation of law."

DEMOCRATS NAME COMMITTEE TO PLAN FOR WILSON'S VISIT

League Also Adds 10 Women to Executive Board to Organize Party Clubs in Each Ward.

A conference of representatives of the Democratic State and City Committees with a committee from the Democratic League of St. Louis to arrange for the visit of President Wilson to St. Louis in July was called last night at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the league at Hotel Jefferson. Sam Lazarus, former

Judge W. T. Jones, former Lieutenant-Governor A. H. Bolte, Walter D.
Thompson, Arthur J. Donnelly and Dr. Louis Padberg were named to represent the league.

If Mrs. Wilson accompanies the President on the trip a committee of women will be selected to provide for her entertainment.

Aroused by the activity of the Republican City Committee in organizing the women as members of the regular party organization in the anticipation they will vote in the next election, the league decided to add 10 women to the Executive Committee and to place in their hands the organization of Women's Democratic clubs in each of the 28 wards.

John Seibert, secretary of the American Legion, has received an application for membership in the French Legion of Honor, No. 1, from a woman, Mrs. R. Four Armed Robbers in Stolen Car Stop Insurance Broker on Way Home From Westwood Club.

STEAL STARTING KEY TO AVOID PURSUIT

Masked Thief Jumps on Running Board on Berry Road in St. Louis County.

Four armed robbers in a stolen automobile held up and robbed Isaac H. Hellman, an insurance broker and discharged army aviator, of 5539 Pershing avenue, and Miss Florence May of 5 Washington terrace, daughter of David May, a department store proprietor, at 9:15 o'clock last night on the Berry road, three-quarters of a mile south of the Manchester road. Hellman and Miss May reported that jewelry valued at nearly $2000 was taken from them.

They had been at the Westwood Country Club and were driving north on the Berry road in Hellman's machine when they were overtaken by another car in which were four men who pointed pistols at Hellman and commanded him to stop. He complied and one of the men, wearing a mask, jumped on the running board.

Two of the men forced Hellman to alight and accompany them a short distance up the road, while another kept watch over Miss May, who remained in the machine. The robbers took from Hellman $43 in cash, including a $1 bill on which was written "I. H. Hellman, Aug. 17, 1903," a stickpin valued at $47, a diamond ring valued at $1000, a life insurance receipt for $2000 and a wrist watch engraved "Lieut. I. H. Hellman, aviation."

From Miss May the robbers took a diamond-set wrist watch valued at $600, a $40 mesh bag, a gold doirine valued at $75 and $2 in cash.

After the robbery the thieves took the starting key of Hellman's machine and drove away. Hellman telephoned to his father, Isaac Hellman, who notified the police and sent out another machine for Hellman and Miss May.

Hellman noted the license number of the robber's car, and it later was identified as the property of Elmer Olds of 1376 Belt avenue, a dentist, who said it was stolen at 8:15 p. m. from Grand and Washington avenues. It was found abandoned on Spring avenue, between Cook and Finney avenues, at 4 a. m. today.

HUSBAND SURVIVED WIFE WHO DIED WITH HIM

Point Decided in Settling $30,000 Estate of St. Louisan, Lusitania Victim.

Heirs of Frank Tesson, a former St. Louisan, who lost his life on the Lusitania, are entitled to the insurance on his life, approximating $30,000, according to a court decision in New York. Word of the decision was received yesterday by the heirs. They are his mother, Mrs. Amelia D. Tesson of Alton; two sisters, Mrs. J. D. McKinney of Alton and Mrs. Bertha A. Montgomery of Philadelphia, and John W. Tesson, 3800 Iowa avenue, this city, a brother.

Tesson and his wife both died when the Lusitania was sunk by a torpedo from a German submarine. He was a buyer for Wanamaker's department stores of New York and Philadelphia, and she was accompanying him on one of his periodical business trips to Europe.

There were no children of the Tessons, but Mrs. Tesson had two sons by a previous marriage, William and Charles Atkins of Alton, who contended that as heirs of their mother they were entitled to the insurance on their stepfather's life on the theory that she had survived him in the disaster. The New York Court, however, following a Court ruling of long standing that man, being stronger than woman, would have a chance to live longer under the same circumstances, if only for a few seconds, decided that Tesson must have lived longer than his wife, though they went down together.

Mrs. Tesson had an individual estate, to which the Tesson heirs waived any right of claim. Tesson's mother is 82 years old and is the widow of Capt. Frank Tesson, who was a steamboat pilot on the Mississippi and who died eight years ago. The son formerly was employed in the shoe department of the old Famous Dry Goods Co. here.

Stein-Bloch

Smart Clothes

of Custom Quality

Genuine fashion doesn't burst its chrysalis, like a butterfly, and take on a new and brilliant form. It is refined each season, not remodeled.

STEIN-BLOCH, who parallels the selfsame styles of Tailor's Row, Fifth Avenue, New York, has perfectly interpreted that refined repression, which marks the new Summer Suits of the best-turned-out men in American business, sport and society.

Starting with pure wool, which is to materials what gold is to metals, STEIN-BLOCH has cut and needled into his styles the Spirit of Militant America—confident, but not conceited; spruce, but not swaggering; fundamentally fine, not superficially showy.

May we show you these really remarkable clothes?

'TRUCK BURGLARS' TAKE EGGS, HAMS AND CLOTH

Goods Valued at $1400 Stolen From One Shop—Many Robberies Reported.

A truckload of suitings, valued at about $1400, was stolen from the tailor shop of Isadore Eisen, 2858 North Union boulevard, about 3 o'clock this morning. The lower half of a back window in the shop was barred, but the burglars got in by lowering the upper half.

Mrs. Lee Kelly, who resides above the tailor shop, told the police that she was awakened by a noise downstairs, and that when she went to a window to investigate, a man in the backyard pointed a revolver at her, and told her to "go back to sleep."

Mrs. Kelly said that she heard an automobile engine running in the alley at the time, and suspected that burglars were at work, but that she obeyed the command rather than run the risk of being shot. The burglary was discovered at 6 a. m. when Eisen opened his shop.

"Truck burglars" resumed their activity after several weeks' vacation, police say, three places being "cleaned out" early yesterday.

At the tailor shop of Isaac Cohn, 3501 North Market street, the burglars "jimmied" a front door and stole cloth valued at $1166. Neighbors told of hearing an automobile engine running near the store in the night.

The tailor shop of Joseph Rechtmann, 4815 Delmar avenue, was robbed of suits and cloth valued at $200. The burglars broke a glass in a front door and reached through the opening and unlocked the place.

At the butcher shop of Louis Rahn, 2631 North Twentieth street, a case containing 30 dozen eggs, three hams and cases of canned corn, beans and tomatoes to the value of $200 were stolen.

An assortment of articles ranging from a National League baseball to diamonds was stolen from the apartment of Mrs. Harry Hardin, 6463 Delmar boulevard, in the absence of the family between 7 and 11 o'clock last night. The burglar cut out a sun porch screen and climbed in that way. Jewelry valued at $400, silk shirts, silk lingerie, sheets, towels, a child's bank containing $23, the baseball and a revolver were taken.

A burglar with a flashlight ransacked the apartment of Joseph Stampfer, 5549 Pershing avenue, at 10:15 p. m. in the absence of the family. The time was fixed for the police by Mary Studeman, a maid at 5555 Pershing avenue, who said she saw the intruder with his flashlight going from room to room in the Stampfer home. She gave police a description. Jewelry valued at $150 and two purses, one containing 55 cents and the other $2.75, were taken.

At the home of Mrs. Norman Wolff, 5098 Westminster place, porch-climbing burglars stole a diamond la valiere valued at $400, a watch valued at $50 and two purses containing $42. The family was on the front porch at the time the burglars climbed a rear pillar and ransacked the upper rooms.

Child's Bank Taken.
From the home of Mrs. Charles W. Davies, 4309 Maryland avenue, a child's bank containing between $7 and $8 in pennies, nickels and dimes and a wedding ring made from a $20 gold piece were stolen.

At the home of Charles Lorraine, 3203 South King's highway, a burglar broke open Lorraine's trunk and stole his bank books and $90 in cash during his absence.

Erculano Baragos, Pittsburg, Pa., told police he rented a room at 122 North Thirteenth street shortly after his arrival in the city. Hanging his coat on a chair, he left for five minutes. When he returned, he said, $200 out of $265 had been stolen from the coat pocket.

Two deeds of trust for property at 6414 Ridge avenue were stolen by a burglar, who robbed the home of Mrs. Marian Hubbard, 6140 Wagner avenue, during her absence. She told police she did not know the value of the deeds, as they belonged to her husband.

A smoking jacket with a green velvet collar together with $28 and 30 pennies hidden beneath a counter, and whisky, wines and cigarettes were stolen from the saloon of John A. Bacigalupo, 2200 Wash. street.

Bacigalupo told police he believed the burglars hid behind an icebox in a hallway of the saloon when he closed up and robbed the place at their leisure later. The whisky and wines were valued at $150.

Pickpocket on Street Car.
A negro stepped out of a hallway in front of 916 North Twelfth street at 10 o'clock last night and ordered Edward Longhouse, 1104 North Sixteenth street, to throw up his hands. Longhouse saw the negro had no revolver, so he tried to capture him.

The negro drew a knife from his coat sleeve and slashed Longhouse across the left wrist and escaped. Longhouse was treated at the dispensary.

George Dillingham, 7251 Manchester avenue, boarded a Belt line car at Eighteenth street and Washington avenue at 5 p. m. yesterday. As he started inside the car a passenger behind him insisted on getting ahead to the front platform and crowded him to one side. At Chestnut street the man asked the motorman to stop, saying he wanted to catch a passing automobile. As he jumped off the conductor warned the passengers to search their pockets to see if they had been robbed. Dillingham found his pocket empty. His purse, he said, had contained $1 and some receipts.

Reiley Copeland, a discharged soldier, stopping at 1015 North Tenth street, was held up, assaulted and robbed of $14 on Market street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, at 11 p. m. yesterday. He told police he had met two men near Union Station who had offered to show him a "good time." He bought them several drinks, he said, before they dragged him into a hallway and robbed him.

Three Autos Stolen.
Automobiles belonging to Mrs. Julia C. Gruner, 5514 Clemens avenue; S. D. Gregson, 5451 Delmar boulevard; and Dr. Elmer Olds, 1376

Belt avenue, were stolen. Dr. Olds' machine was used by automobile robbers to operate in the county and was recovered early today where it had been abandoned at Spring and Cook avenues. Mrs. Gruner's car was taken from in front of the home and abandoned in front of 5736 Westminster place. The starting key was stolen.

Philip Zebelman, manager for the Montreal Fur Co., 709 Washington avenue, asked detectives to investigate the theft of four Jap mink furs valued at $440 from the company's show rooms, during the past seven days. The furs, he said, disappeared one at a time.

Doctors Modify Beer Indorsement.
NEW YORK, June 19.—The American Medical Association of America, which adopted unanimously at the opening of its annual convention here a resolution indorsing light wines and beers as beneficial, modified its action yesterday by the passage of a second resolution in which the problem of the good or ill in alcohol was left to the individual member to solve for himself. Dr. L. M. Ottolenghi of St. Louis was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the association.

SENATE VOTES AGAINST BEER EXEMPTION, 55-11

First Test Vote in Body Taken in Washington to Mean Defeat of Any Like Measures.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 19.—Certain defeat for efforts to have Congress exempt beer and wine from operation of the war-time prohibition law was seen in an overwhelming vote of 55 to 11 in the Senate yesterday against an exemption proposal. By that margin the Senate tabled a motion by Senator Phelan, Democrat, of California, to add a rider to the agricultural appropriation bill for application of the war-time prohibition law to distilled spirits alone. The sentiment of the Senate thus expressed in the first test vote was taken generally to sound the death knell for measures designed to permit the use of beer and wines under the war-time legislation.

Speaking in support of his amendment, Senator Phelan declared that as the war virtually was at an end and demobilization practically completed, Congress had no reasonable excuse for infringing on the rights of the states to determine whether or not they should permit the sale of light wines and beers.

Grape growers and hop raisers, Senator Phelan said, had been encouraged by the Government and, if the war-time provisions against beer and wine were raised, he said, they might in small part recoup losses from constitutional prohibition by selling this year's crop of grapes and hops.

Senator Phelan proposed suspension of Senate rules barring legislative riders in appropriation bills, which requires a two-thirds majority. He spoke briefly in support of limiting the war-time prohibition act to distilled spirits only, but no discussion came from prohibition advocates.

Senator Granna, Republican, of North Dakota, in charge of the agricultural appropriation bill, moved to table Senator Phelan's motion, which, he said, would result in interminable debate, and thus cut off further debate.

On the Phelan motion Senators voting in its support were: Republicans—Caldwell, Edge, France, Knox, La Follette and Wadsworth, Total 6.

Democrats—King, Phelan, Reed, Thomas and Williams, Total 5. Senator McLean, Republican, of Connecticut, also voted against tabling the motion, but later withdrew his vote because of a pair.

DENTIST IS ABSOLVED IN SLANDER SUIT FOR $40,000

Wins Verdict in Action Brrought by Concrete Man Following Divorce Case.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in Circuit Judge Hogan's court in the case of Lionel R. Viterbo, a concrete dealer, who sued John A. Wavrin, a dentist, for $40,000 damages for alleged slander.

Viterbo complained that he wrongfully was named in Wavrin in the latter's suit for divorce against his wife, Blanche Wavrin, which greatly damaged him socially and in a business way. He also alleged that Wavrin complained to the Westgate slasonic lodge, of which the plaintiff was a member. This resulted in Viterbo's being acquitted by a Masonic committee, but caused embarrassment, he said.

After Wavrin had been denied a divorce Viterbo filed his damage suit. At the trial of the latter suit Viterbo's divorced wife was called as a witness for the defense. She also testified for Wavrin at the trial of the divorce suit. Her testimony at the Wavrin divorce trial, in which she blamed Mrs. Wavrin, was read to the jury. Her own divorce was obtained on the ground of indignity.

Mrs. Viterbo called up the Post-Dispatch today to deny a printed statement that she later had exonerated Mrs. Wavrin.

Attorney Charles Erd, who represented Wavrin, introduced the evidence in the divorce trial to show in what way, if any, the plaintiff was involved in the matter.

GAS MOST HUMANE WEAPON, SAYS CHEMICAL WARFARE HEAD

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Major-General William L. Sibert, director of chemical warfare, before the Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday, said gas was responsible for 26 per cent of the American casualties in France, but only 4 per cent of those affected died. A survey showed, he said, that gas left no bad effect upon those recovering.

"It is a very effective, but not a cruel method, then," asked Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, of Oregon. "I look upon it as the most humane element in war," replied Gen. Sibert.

Before the House Ways and Means Committee, Gen. Sibert urged a protective tariff on dyes, saying that in the next war gas would be used more extensively than ever.

Ohio Brewers Want Amendment. By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, June 19.—Trustees of the Ohio Brewers Association met here yesterday and decided to submit two constitutional amendments to Ohio voters at the November election, one seeking to restore the pre-prohibition status of Ohio, and the other to permit the sale of beverages containing 2½ per cent alcohol.

The flames spread to a storeroom on the second floor and damaged caskets and trimmings about $2000.

NEW EXCURSION BOAT
MAKES INITIAL TRIP

Steamer "J. S." Enters Service
Here Immediately After Arrival From Davenport, Io.

The new excursion steamer J. S. of the Streckfus Steamboat Line left her wharf at the foot of Washington avenue this forenoon for Alton and Chautauqua on her initial trip of the season. The boat has been building since last autumn at the company's docks at Davenport, Io., and arrived in St. Louis under her own steam at 6 a. m. today.

The new steamer is a sister ship of the St. Paul. Both boats have a carrying capacity of 5000 persons. The J. S. is 250 feet long and 50 feet wide, its breadth of beam making it extremely safe. As an added precaution, 42 water-tight compartments have been constructed in the hull. Four or five compartments, river men say, could fill without affecting the craft's buoyancy. Its cost was $320,000.

Among the numerous features in the boat's equipment are included a steam-driven turbine generator that furnishes power for 6000 electric lights and operates 100 electric fans. Oil paintings of scenes along the Mississippi decorate the walls of the dance hall. An automatic sprinkler system has been installed and a carload of life preservers, with an attendant quota of metal boats and life rafts, has been provided.

The J. S. is said to be the fastest boat on the river. She is capable of a speed of 18 miles downstream and about 12 miles upstream. She carries a crew of 115 persons. Although termed by its owners as a five-deck steamer, the J. S. in reality has but four. On the third deck, however, a portion of the deck is raised.

"We hope to increase the excursion trade and popularize the river," C. J. Mangan, general agent for the Streckfus line said. "The revival of dancing has done much to bring river excursions again into favor. Then, too, the discovery of jazz music has helped and we have negro jazz bands on both the St. Paul and the new J. S. We have been carrying capacity crowds so far this season. During the warm evenings the dance floors have been packed."

The J. S. carried a Christ Church Cathedral excursion today and will return tonight for M. A. A. excursion. The first public trip will be made Saturday afternoon. Sundays and Mondays the boat will make Illinois River trips and on other days the destination will be Alton and Chautauqua.

TRADE RINGS CONTROL BRITISH INDUSTRY, COMMITTEE REPORTS

Government Investigates Activity of Combines and Trusts Perfected During the War.

LONDON. Business rings and trusts perfected during the war are controlling Great Britain's activities, according to the findings of a Government committee appointed by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of Reconstruction.

The committee does not suggest what the Government's attitude toward trusts should be. The only proposal made being that the Board of Trade should set up a tribunal to investigate cases of abuse caused by combines.

It is to deal with huge trade combinations is one of the big problems of the near future, it is said in Government circles. Almost every big industry in the country, with the exception of shipbuilding, is said to be controlled by a combine or ring.

SPENCER INTRODUCES RESOLUTION ON LEAGUE

Would Declare Monroe Doctrine National Policy and Restrict Pledge of Assistance.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 19.—Adoption of the Knox resolution regarding the league of nations and the peace treaty would be interpreted as an uncalculated effort by the Senate to dictate to the peace conference, Senator Thomas, Democrat of Colorado, said today in opposing the measure. The Colorado Senator declared the proposal that the Senate declare itself now against accepting the league as intertwined with the peace terms was improper and unwise.

Before Senator Thomas spoke, Senator Spencer, Republican of Missouri, introduced a resolution proposing that the Senate declare that under any league plan adopted application of the Monroe Doctrine must be reserved entirely for national determination. The resolution went over without action. The Spencer resolution would declare the Monroe Doctrine "an essential national policy," and that "the necessity and extent of its application and enforcement are matters to be determined alone by the United States."

The tariff, immigration and like internal questions would be declared "matters to be determined entirely by the country in which they arise and under no circumstances questions for settlement under the league of nations."

The resolution would declare also "that the United States can not blind itself in advance to either make war in the future or to send its army and navy into other lands for purposes of control."

Senator Thomas, in opening his address on the Knox resolution, declared the measure raised fundamental questions regarding the power of the Senate in treaty making and also of expediency of an expression by the Senate.

He said, "as a part of the treaty making power, we should not attempt at this time to advise the peace congress at Paris, either of our own views concerning its course or as to what the treaty should contain."

FIRST ATLANTIC AIR MAIL IS DELIVERED IN LONDON

Post-Dispatch Letter Is in Pouch Taken Over by Alcock and Brown.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch. LONDON, June 19.—The first Atlantic air mail was delivered in London Tuesday night, three days from the time it was placed in charge of Capt. Alcock in St. Johns. Delivery was delayed for two days because the Vickers-Vimy airplane stuck in an Irish bog.

In Alcock's aerial post bag was a letter to the Post-Dispatch's London correspondent from a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World in St. Johns, who gave it to Alcock on Saturday. The letter of June 14 reached its destination ahead of the American papers of May 30. It prophetically forecast the success which crowned Alcock and Brown's great venture. It read as follows:

"I have a very firmly grounded feeling that Alcock and Brown are going to make the big hon in their Vickers-Vimy. If they do it, it will be more than luck, for it will be a result they had a right to expect. From the kind and amount of work they have been doing here, and it will be a result that we who watched them expected quite as confidently as they did."

"Capt. Brown to show you the American flag he carried as a mascot in his pocketbook. There is the still prouder reflection that the flag was carried by the first to make the flight without a stop, and that there was an American as well as a British flag in the cab."

Mr. and Mrs. Philomena Bevis, parents of the bridegroom, departed the early part of the week to attend the wedding commencement and the wedding.

On account of the serious illness of the bridegroom's father, the wedding of Miss Marjorie Head and Lieut. Miss Ruth Jennings, Moberly, Mo., and Kenneth Head, brother of the bride, will be the only attendants. Following the ceremony, the young couple will depart for New Orleans and St. Joseph, La., where they will be at home after July 1.

A pretty wedding of yesterday morning was that of Miss Louise Mary Busch and William P. Rogers, which took place at solemn high mass at St. Mary and Joseph's Church, Carondelet, the bridegroom's brother, the Rev. Edward Rogers, officiating.

The bride was attended by Miss Minnette Busch as maid of honor and Cornelius O'Brien as best man. Last night a reception was given for the couple at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Busch, 6448 Vermont avenue.

FAIR CHANCE PROMISED BELL PHONE STRIKERS

Manager Says Discriminations Were Not Authorized—Text of Burleson Order Received.

F. O. Hale, general manager of the Bell Telephone Co. here, sent a letter yesterday afternoon to O. E. Jennings, representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, promising him that there would be no discrimination against telephone operators who took part in Monday's one-day strike. He said there had been no such discrimination with his approval.

Jennings, after receiving this letter, cited to Hale instances in which discrimination was charged, and Hale said that such acts of subordinate officials were without his authority. Jennings said after this meeting that he was hopeful of reaching a complete and satisfactory settlement of the difficulty.

Copies of Postmaster-General Burleson's order, affirming the right of telephone employees to organize, have been received by union officials. The order reads:

Text of Burleson's Order.
"Employees of telephone companies shall have the right to bargain as individuals or collectively through committees of their representatives chosen to act for them. Where prior to Government control a company dealt with representatives chosen by the employees to act for them who were not in the employ of the company, they shall hereafter do so. The telephone company shall designate one or more of its officials who shall be authorized to deal with such representatives or individuals in matters of better conditions of labor, hours of employment, compensation or grievances, and such matters must be taken up for consideration within five days after presentation.

"Such employees shall have the right to organize or to affiliate with organizations that seem to them best calculated to serve their interest, and no employee shall be discharged, demoted or otherwise discriminated against because of membership in any such organization, as prescribed in Bulletin No. 9, issued by me Oct. 2, 1918. In case of dismissal, demotion or undesirable transfer of employee, where no real cause is shown by company for said dismissal, demotion or undesirable transfer, it shall be considered that discrimination was practiced, and upon such finding the employee shall be reinstated to former position with full pay for time lost, or shall be reimbursed for any loss sustained by reason of demotion or transfer.

"Inability or refusal to perform the regular work of the position occupied by them, excessive use of intoxicants, dishonesty, incivility to subscribers or the public shall be considered sufficient cause for dismissal.

"Where requests or demands are now pending the telephone companies shall immediately proceed to negotiate a settlement.

"All telephone companies are hereby directed to comply strictly with the requirements of this order, and failure to do so on part of any official will result in disciplinary action."

BUSCH GARDENS IN CALIFORNIA TO BE SOLD BY BREWER'S WIDOW

Movement Started to Purchase Property for Pasadena City Park.

Following a decision of Mrs. Adolphus Busch to sell the famous Busch gardens in Pasadena, Cal., said to represent an expenditure of $2,000,000, and an upkeep cost of $50,000 a year, a movement has been started in Pasadena to purchase the property for a city park.

The tract comprises 130 acres, and was planted with an elaborate collection of flowers and plants by the late Adolphus Busch, who, during his lifetime, was there frequently. Since his death, his widow has visited it only a few times.

August A. Busch, while confirming the report that the place would be sold, said that no definite steps had been taken toward a sale. Busch declined to make any statement as to the price which would be asked for it.

She testified that her husband, who recently was discharged from the army after serving overseas, told her he did not love her and that he was going to Los Angeles to make a name for himself in the moving picture business. She said she met him at the Hotel Statler shortly after his return and he advised her to get a divorce. They were married Nov. 28, 1916. The divorce was not contested.

GEORGE THE FOURTH of England once sent Andrew Jackson a message by a titled lady who arrived when our Iron President was wearing several days' growth of beard.

Remonstrated with by James Buchanan, the old Indian fighter speedily shaved and received the fair messenger, who later said: "At none of the courts of Europe have I ever seen a man who in elegance of manner could excel General Jackson"—an unconscious compliment to both the General's skill and his razor.

Yet this great President, whose guiding principle was "Desperate courage makes one a majority"—used the same simple razor that your own father used—a model whose general form twenty centuries have not bettered except with the safety, the extra convenience of the guarded

DEAR FOLKS:

LET me tell you about a Wilson & Company party given by the members of the Fellowship Club of the New York plant at the Waldorf Hotel last Wednesday night. It was given in honor of Thomas E. Wilson, president of the company, who recently returned from Europe, where he visited his branch offices there. He made a special trip from Chicago to fraternize with his fellow-workers in New York.

The New York Fellowship Club has an active membership and the members are very proud of it, so they wanted to show Mr. Wilson how it measures up alongside of the other Fellowship Clubs that exist in other plants around the country.

But most of all, they wanted to show Mr. Wilson how much they appreciate his efforts in grouping his 25,000 workers into one big, happy family where all share in the generous distribution of good-will, rewards and privileges. I think it is great that one man has the power and ability to lead so many people into pleasant paths and make them proud in his leadership. The evening party opened with a performance by a minstrel troupe composed of workers, whose singing and acting and conversation delighted the members and their wives who were present. After this part of the program had been carried out Mr. Wilson was introduced and the cheers that greeted him testified to his popularity among his fellow-workers.

It is easy enough to detect the difference between a genuine and a forced oration; one is spontaneous; the other shows it is given because it is expected.

When, however, hundreds of men and women stand and cheer and applaud and wave handkerchiefs—and do so impulsively and heartily—then there is no doubt about the spontaneity of it, nor is there any doubt about their liking and honoring the man.

Mr. Wilson talked to them very briefly, but he said what was in his heart to say, and he said it so sincerely that his fellow-workers knew that he meant every word.

The secret of Mr. Wilson's success in his great business of supplying people with his company's CERTIFIED FOOD PRODUCTS—such as hams and bacon, canned meats, vegetables and table delicacies—all backed up also by the slogan "THE WILSON LABEL PROTECTS YOUR TABLE"—is due to the faith he has in his fellow-workers and to their faith in him. He says so—they say so—and that's all there is to it—except, of course, that all feel their responsibility in the preparation of the Wilson & Co. products just the same as they feel bound in honor to play on the level with one another.

It is out of the question for people living in the same household to act true-blue in one direction and false in another—and in this particular household, don't forget, there is absolute harmony as affecting the spirit, the thoughts and the action of every member thereof.

Mr. Wilson remained with his fellow-workers as one of the liveliest and most agreeable members of the party until the evening's gayeties ended.

And so goes along merrily and happily the building of a great organization in matters more important than mere cold business calculations.

Sincerely yours,
William C. Freeman,
250 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

By Marguerite

An absent-minded old gentleman recently. The seat "clothes and women in wince blue—out "backless" and she was coming from the organ, and gentleman was comfortably seated brilliant as anything ever shown. A sextet of lovely young women their deep gold girdles, their powder deepening the artificial foot-wide hats, moved at a gait. Behind them walked a taller girl, the smile of the successful star of Automatically the old gentleman with the gallant fervor he was a coupled his usual place in the first "Sh-sh-sh!" from his neighbors he was heard to murmur. "This moment I thought I was seeing 1919."

Perhaps it is a reaction from haste and simplicity which characterized the war weddings the last two years. Whatever the reason, it is a quite extraordinary series, a distinct theatricality—one critic has described as a "jazz" has hit the June wedding this season. Add the high cost of getting married to the high cost of living, more in New York or its neighbors suburbs does the simple, dignified modest wedding ceremony of days find favor. Never did bridesmaids and other attendants wear such costly, conspicuous frocks after every sensational fashion of the moment and developed startlingly brilliant colors. The bride makes the one concession to old convention by wearing white and a but her dress might have been constructed for the smartest of dances if her wedding is an event affair—and it usually is. In the choice of color schemes each young woman tries to go a step further than her neighbor. Green are the days when bridesmaids wore faded pinks and blues, the soft pastel shades which were dainty charming without being flamboyant. Now gold and orchid are favorite colors for bridal attendants. The conventional marches are played, but there is nothing so stately and about the bride procession. One is reminded of the naive old words somebody wrote for wedding march:

"Here comes the bride— Get on to her side. See how she wobbles from side side. Here comes the groom— Not a moment too soon!" The bride and her attendants are not exactly wobbly, but they are with a tripping, tottering, stepped step, which irresistibly calls the dance hall or the chortle. They are made up like a chorus too. To show them off properly footlights should be set up about space under the bridal bell as spotlight turned on. Purple p...

U. S. and Colombia Reach Agreement, Expected to End Long Strained Relations

Senate Committee About to Report Favorably New Treaty Giving Colombia $25,000,000 for Rights in Canal Zone.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE. A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Sixteen years have elapsed since the people of Panama, by a sudden revolutionary movement, separated themselves from Colombia, set up a republican form of Government and 72 hours afterward were recognized by the Government of the United States.

By that action the building of the Panama Canal was made immediately possible because the negotiations for purchase had been carried on without seeming prospect of success.

But, while the canal was built and was opened to the world, the prestige of the United States throughout Latin-America suffered a decline. Repeatedly Colombia asked for payment of damages, but again and again was turned down by the Senate of the United States.

Today all is changed. The United States and Colombia have just reached an agreement whereby the hostilities and strained relations between the two countries will be removed. And the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is about to report favorably a new treaty giving Colombia $25,000,000 for her rights in the canal zone.

No Expression of Regret. The treaty contains no expression of regret or apology that differences have arisen between the two countries. Such a proposal was included when the treaty was being negotiated by the Taft administration.

When Philander C. Knox was Secretary of State, and it was included again when President Wilson, through Secretary Bryan and Lansing, made repeated efforts to get the treaty through the Senate.

But the influence of Theodore Roosevelt kept the pact from being ratified. He considered that regret or apology was an admission of complicity by the United States in the revolutionary movement by which Panama was born.

He vigorously denied all such insinuations in a special message to Congress in 1904, though afterwards he did say in a public address, "I took Panama and talked about it afterwards."

This has since been regarded as an admission of seizure, though his friends have justified that course on the ground that Colombia was blocking a great enterprise by holding up the United States at a higher price.

Department Statement. The Department of State, in July, 1914, met this argument with a statement which said in part, "If it is to be a treaty, the price offered by the United States prior to Panama's separation was a reasonable one, and that Colombia ought to have accepted it, that valuation cannot be reduced merely because Colombia was not willing to accept the offer. The price then offered was approximately $17,500,000. But when this price was offered, it was understood that Colombia would retain the State of Panama and have the advantage to be derived from proximity to the canal. What justice or fairness can there be in the proposition that Colombia, having refused to accept this price, is not entitled to any damages at all? The payment of the $25,000,000 is only a reasonable compensation for damages actually suffered, damages that ought to be paid to matter what theory one adopts in regard to the action of the United States in the action of Colombia in 1903."

That has really remained the status of the case since 1914. Occasionally an effort has been made since then to press the treaty through the American Senate, but unsuccessfully. Senator Lodge, intimate friend of Col. Roosevelt, would not permit the treaty to be ratified, as he could command more than one-third of the membership of the Senate, even though his party was in the minority.

Now, Lodge, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has continued the amendments which would be acceptable to him, and an apology clause.

Acting Secretary of State Polk and Senators Lodge and Knox have been in frequent conference and the position of the Senate was made clear to the Colombian Government, who now has accepted all the amendments, eliminations and changes proposed.

So the treaty is in such form that Senator Lodge feels he can champion its ratification on the floor of the Senate. He will be assisted, too, by Senator Knox, who, as Secretary of State, saved the merit of Colombia's claims. Indeed, Dubois, the American Minister to Colombia, under Secretary Knox's administration of the Department of State, estimated Colombia's reversionary rights at about $47,000,000.

Colombia Satisfied. Colombia would have liked it better if the treaty had contained an expression of regret, but is satisfied with the present arrangement. Republican as well as Democratic actually signed such a document and submitted it to the American Senate.

So far as Colombia is concerned, she considers this action on the part of the executive branch of our Government as sufficient expression of the desire of the United States Government as well as an overwhelming body of American citizens.

The payment of the $25,000,000 in itself compensation which Colombia will consider arises from the treatment she received in 1903. So one will be able to prevent Colombia from construing the $25,000,000 as any other sum of money as confirming her views.

But throughout Latin-America, the importance of a settlement of the Colombian controversy cannot be exaggerated. Latin-Americans have usually pointed to the Panama episode as a proof of so-called American hypocrisy, professing to be the champion of weak nations, and then taking advantage of them.

The repeal of the tolls provided in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain was an instance, however, of ungrudging generosity in the interpretation of a moot point in a treaty and Senators Lodge and Root supported that action vehemently.

16 Years to Right Wrong. Today it falls to Senator Lodge of Massachusetts again to take a step which corrects a wrong impression throughout Central and South America. It means that next day to the Panama canal the United States will not have a potential foe, but a friend and ally that commercial relations between Colombia and ourselves which have been impeded for 16 years now is to be assisted and stimulated.

The $25,000,000 is to be expended for public works in Colombia, and long ago it was announced that contracts for materials and work were to be given to firms in the United States. It may have taken 15 years to right a wrong, but the United States by ratifying the new treaty will have done so nevertheless and the record of this country will have been duly corrected.

WAR CAMP COMMUNITY SERVICE COLLECTING DATA ON SOLDIERS

Cooperating with Missouri Historical Society in Compiling Records.

The War Camp Community Service has opened a Military History Bureau which is cooperating with the Missouri Historical Society and Adj. Gen. Harvey Clark in collecting the biographical record of every Missourian who served in the war in any rank or any branch of the service.

All men who have not already filled out questionnaires, or who are not sure that the official form was used, are asked to call at the War Camp Community Service, 108 North Fourth street, and blanks will be given them. The registration will close July 10.

Records have been collected for St. Louis County by the Missouri Historical Society, and a number of Associate Registrars were appointed by General Clark, who are asked to turn in at once all questionnaires issued by them to the Missouri Historical Society, Jefferson Memorial Building.

The Society would like also to get photographs, letters and any additional data concerning the genealogical and personal records of the men.

POSTAL CENSORSHIP TO CEASE

GRAND OPERA IN ARENA WHERE MEXICO CITY HAD BULL FIGHT

Unarmed Picador Said to Have Let Bull Lick Sugar From Hand.

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, May 24.—The Teatro El Torero, the most pretentious of bull-fight arenas, is now the home of grand opera as a result of President Carranza's decision that bull fights should cease.

Interpreting grand opera, dancers and concert artists have appeared in the arena and it is stated that these various forms of amusement will be offered until some definite action is taken as to the future of bull fighting.

It was in this arena that what is said to be one of the most remarkable spectacles in the history of the sport was staged. A bull, El Bonito, known as one of the fiercest fighters, on being brought into the arena charged and killed three horses and injured as many men without being touched by the estoque of any matador.

As the bull stood bellowing defiance and with no one apparently willing to attack him, Miguel Balla, a picador who was a spectator in one of the boxes, leaped unarmed into the enclosure. In his outstretched hand he carried two lumps of sugar which he nonchalantly offered to the bull. The animal suddenly ceased its bellowing and in a few moments docilely licked the sugar from Balla's hand. The latter returned unharmed to his box amid the plaudits of the spectators.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Take the Courts Out of Politics.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As to re-enacting capital punishment, I don't believe it necessary, and generally it is those without influence who suffer by it most. To be brief, I believe if the laws were enforced and political influence useless it would prevent very much crime. Being a critic I should offer a way to do it. I suggest the following: Amend the State Constitution and the City Charter so that all future State Judges and prosecuting officers will be appointed by the Governor, and all city Judges and prosecuting officers will be appointed by the Mayor to serve until recalled or removed by a vote of the people only; should a vacancy occur, the senior Judge to be promoted by right of seniority, the last vacancy to be filled by the Governor or Mayor, as the case may be, subject to recall only as above. Should any Judge receive promotion, the next senior Judge to be promoted and so on, the last vacancy to be filled by the Governor or Mayor, if State or city office. Should no Judge desire promotion, then the vacancy to be filled as above, to serve subject to the same as above.

In this scheme Judges would not and prosecuting officers would not have to look to politicians every four years for their support to hold office and there would be very few criminals left to go except for a close personal friend, and that would be seldom, as the would fear the recall by the people, and when the man who appointed them was out of office there would be little reason to show favors.

Julius C. Jackson's Book.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I wish to congratulate Mr. Julius C. Jackson on his book, "U. R. Burglary." Could it be the organization that a corporation would treat the public and the poor employees as the U. R. did? They have created the public out of a seat and the employees out of thousands of dollars, which they then tell me Mr. Jackson stands at the rear of the car and fights for the six cents fare in order to keep himself in bondage by the company. I have talked to a great many street car men, they tell me Mr. Jackson's statement is correct. How can any of the U. R. officials face the street car men? Is there no shame in them? I do hope the Public Service Commission will want the men these demands have made for lost time and ill treatment and reduce the fare to 5c. They did it in Detroit, Mich., and the U. R. perhaps would cut out their dirty deeds and be elected as a square company and not until then will they get respect from the public. I have often wondered why outsiders interfere with the company and the employees, but it is plain to me now. They were afraid the U. R. Co. and from now on I will stand for the street car men and not for the company.

ED. A FRIEND OF JACKSON.

Price of Meat to the Poor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Last week the packers of Chicago sent out press reports stating that the prices of meat were soon coming down. Today the "Retail Dealers of America," an organization of small and semi-large packers, who are tied to the apron strings of the large packers (not retailers in the sense that the public knows the retailers) are used to soothe the public breath, or, in other words, the consumer.

I stand behind the meat counter 12 hours a day and am in touch with the buying public continually. The conditions that I find are that the wealthy and the highly paid laboring men pay the price without a whimper. But the class of people (and they are the best of citizens) who earn just enough to live from hand to mouth, are the real sufferers.

This camouflage which the packers are sending out through press reports is not going to work always. There is a limit to all things, and if the real dealers could put ounces of prevention into action instead of pounds of cure, there would not be need fearing radical organizations. This world belongs to the people and should be run for the people, and there will not be real peace on earth until it is so run.

The packers have been telling the public of the small percentages they earn per pound on meat. They did not tell us of the immense profits made on eggs, poultry, canned goods, cereals, oils and canned meats. They did not tell us of the immense amount saved on deliveries by using their meat trucks to deliver these side lines while delivering their meat orders. They did not tell us of the large profits made by manipulation, such as filling their pickling cellars with green hams, bacon and other pork products during the winter months when hams and pork are cheapest, and bringing them out during the summer months (when smoked meats are in demand) at advanced prices? No!

Yet can we blame them for making all money they can? It is the system we call business. The remedy, I think, lies in the removal of the politicians who are continually influenced for their own selfish ends. This seems to me could be accomplished by developing a large independent vote.

CLERK.

WILL THE SENATE MAJORITY RULE?

What will be the effect of the Senate vote on the Knox resolution to separate the peace covenant from the peace treaty with regard to the ratification of the treaty? The Senate decision on the resolution should work both ways. If the resolution carries, a majority of the Senate will declare against the peace covenant, at least, as a part of the peace treaty, and we assume the Senate will not ratify the peace treaty including the covenant. Of course, that will be the death sentence of the League of Nations and the end of peace, because without a League to guarantee peace and the terms of the treaty, the nations will prepare to enforce their own will and to defend their assumed rights by armed might. They are not likely to be brought together again on a league plan.

On the other hand, if the Knox resolution is defeated by a majority of the Senate, will a minority block the ratification of the treaty? Would the minority in this vital matter be justified in disregarding the will of the majority? We think not.

The vote on this or on any amendment or resolution that may be brought up will be the voice of the Senate majority. It will be the decision as to the League of Nations of a Senate referendum which ought to be binding on the entire Senate body.

We do not need a referendum of the Senate or the people on the question raised by Senator Knox with regard to the effect on the sovereignty of the United States of treaties obligating this country to submit to arbitration of international disputes. The Senate, with the approval of the people, has repeatedly gone on record in favor of arbitration treaties which require no more concession of sovereign power than the League. The only difference is that the treaties were made with single nations and the League is an agreement with a group of nations. The principle is the same.

Senator Knox, who in 1910 was an ardent advocate of a federation of nations to abolish war by agreement, is now filled with fears and doubts. He has lost all faith in American ideas, American ideals and American constitutional government as applied beyond the states of this union. He argues from the standpoint and with the reasoning of the opponents of our own Constitution, who feared the complete destruction of state rights and popular liberty under the Constitution. Yet the Constitution has worked and we have proved that the powers the states conceded for common ends and common protection have preserved liberty—its guarantees of rights are the bulwark of our rights and liberties. Our federation of states has worked admirably. The League of Nations is merely the extension of the principle of federation for the safeguarding of common rights and liberties and the peace of the nations.

Senator Knox and his followers have gone over a hundred years backward to find objections to the League of Nations. Their fears are ancient illusions which experience has dissipated in the minds of unbiased men.

The League of Nations is a step forward on the line of true Americanism. It is an attempt to apply the principles of constitutional law and the guarantees of justice and liberty which have blessed us to the nations of the world. Have we no faith in these principles and in the progress of civilization on the path of organized democracy under the reign of law?

LABOR'S CONSERVATIVE MAJORITY.

Proof that the conservative forces are in the majority in the American Federation of Labor has been conclusively shown in one of the stormiest sessions of the organization's history. Recognition of Russia's Soviet Government, a strike in protest of the Mooney verdict and changing the date of Labor day from the first Monday in September to May 1 were among the radical proposals voted down. The discussion of those motions brought forth sound expressions of American sentiment. In speaking against the change in the date of Labor day, Mr. Gompers observed that "Labor day was a day for American labor, not a political event."

Of the same tenor were the remarks of John P. Frey of Cincinnati on the Soviet resolution. "Either we support the Soviet," he said, "or we should declare our disapproval. We should do the latter if we believe in a democratic form of government established and maintained by popular elections."

The fact that there are extremists in the federation who are in sympathy with the anarchical regime in Russia and apparently ready to go to any length to enforce their demands and set up their order of things is no occasion for alarm.

American labor, in its leadership and rank and file, is patriotic and constructive. Its loyalty to American institutions has frequently been tested and as frequently proved. In that loyalty is one of the happy auguries for the safety and permanence of democracy.

THE DUTIES OF A DIRECTOR.

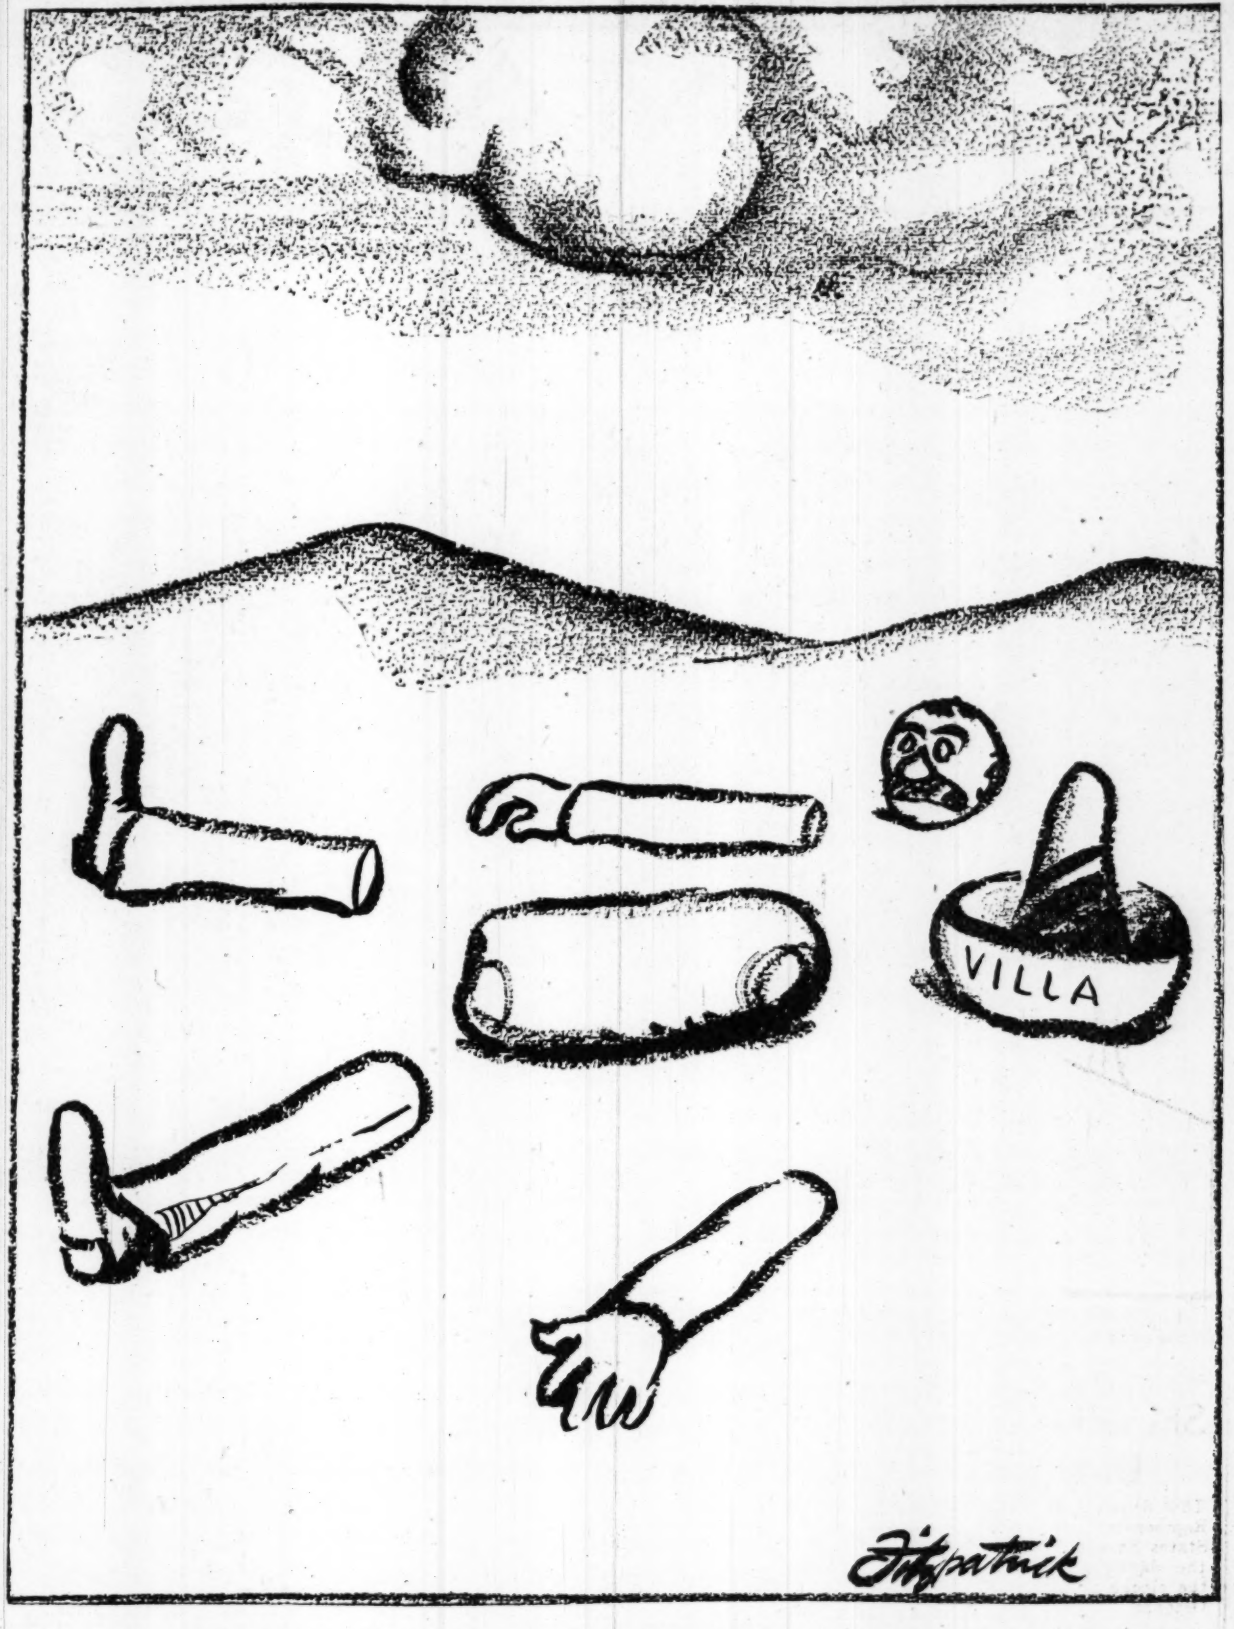

What are the duties of a director of a public service corporation? The testimony of a witness in the Seaman suit fairly raises this question. The bookkeeping methods of the United Railways were under discussion. The witness, a director of that company, admitted that "I would not want my books kept that way."

It is not necessary to rehearse the story in detail. Suffice to say that the trial of this suit has shown that large sums of money were expended by the United Railways Co. for which there was no intelligent accounting. The records are spotted with entries of the vaguest character. The convenient generality, "for the good of the company," is the only explanation for disbursements totaling an immense sum. Such auditing may justly be defined as the art that conceals rather than reveals.

Whether the director whose testimony we have quoted ever objected to this method of bookkeeping we do not know. But from what has been told about the directors' meetings of the United Railways it may be inferred that criticism or unpleasant questioning rarely, if ever, marred those occasions. The recommendations of the executive officers were apparently ratified without investigation and without much debate.

Such confidence was highly complimentary to the management, and if the company's affairs were being successfully conducted such confidence might be understood. But in view of the fact that the company was not successful, that its securities had fallen so in value as to be accounted worthless by the parent concern, and a most unfortunate investment by the holders of its bonds and preferred stock, this attitude of blind trust on the part of directors in the sagacity and reliability of the management is hard to comprehend. Here was a failing enterprise, condemned as such by the market, headed for insolvency, whose methods of bookkeeping were admittedly faulty, but whose management, charged with indefensible practices, nevertheless, basked in the favor and admiration of its directors.

There is a responsibility attaching to the office of director of a great public service corporation—a responsibility to the public, a responsibility to the investors. If the directors of the United Railways were aware of that responsibility the evidence of that fact is yet to be presented.

ART AND SOCIALISM.

From the San Francisco Call and Post.

BERTRAND RUSSELL, noted English philosopher, has written a new book called "Proposed Roads to Freedom," published by Henry Holt & Co. It is a criticism of proposed panaceas for the ills of civilization. In a passage on the future of art and science he makes some interesting observations on one form of Socialism. He writes:

"In the fine arts, as a rule, it is not easy in the modern world either to make a living by really good work or to find a subsidiary profession which leaves leisure enough for creation. This is presumably one reason, though by no means the only one, why art is less flourishing than science."

"The bureaucratic state Socialist will have a simple solution for these difficulties. He will appoint a body consisting of the most eminent celebrities in an art or a science, whose business it shall be to judge the work of young men, and to issue licenses to those whose productions find favor in their eyes. A licensed artist shall be considered to have performed his duty to the community by producing works of art. But of course he will have to prove his industry by never failing to produce in reasonable quantities, and his continued ability by never failing to please his eminent judges—until, in the fullness of time, he becomes a judge himself. In this way the authorities will insure that the artist shall be competent, regular, and obedient to the best traditions of his art. Those who fail to fulfill these conditions will be compelled by the withdrawal of their license to seek some less dubious mode of earning their living. Such will be the ideal of the state Socialist."

"In such a world all that makes life tolerable to the lover of beauty would perish. Art springs from a wild side of human nature; between the artist and the bureaucrat there must always be a profound mutual antagonism, an age-long battle in which the artist, always outwardly worsted, wins in the end through the gratitude of mankind for the joy that he puts into their lives."

"If the wild side of human nature is to be permanently subjected to the orderly rules of the benevolent, uncomprehending bureaucrat, the joy of life will perish out of the earth, and the very impulse to live will gradually wither and die. Better a thousandfold the present world with all its horrors than such a dead mummy of a world. It is this nightmare that makes artists, and lovers of beauty generally, so suspicious of Socialism."

PANETELA.

N O, Luella dear. The weather isn't operative. Quite. Possibly. The weather prophet has been doing it for spite. Like as not. They never thought of even asking him to come. And he therefore means to put us very promptly on the bum.

Would you give an entertainment there amid the fruiting phlox? Then, he politic, My dear— Send the Weather Man a box. All he has to do is signal Up the star-illumined Stair. And the entertainment Washes Down the terrible Des Peres.

That is all. My sweet Luella— Asking, likely. Is known to psychologists as complex. When you have complex the mention of someone concerning whom you are thus affected throws you into a spasm. Still, that can't be what Senator Reed has. A duck-fig isn't a spasm.

In stepping behind an automobile, look out for a delivery boy pounding a Ford truck to pieces in the opposite direction.

Wouldn't the Government just as well let us die of thirst after July 1 as worry us to death now?

Inasmuch as it did not rain yesterday, it will probably rain twice today. Just so we get rain.

The people giving the opera in Forest Park couldn't have sent the weather man a box.

RETRIBUTION.

DEAR, your eyes were a new sweet surprise. That day in the June jeweled wood. Your face—ah, the wavering wind-flower's grace. Reflects it as never I could! Your song—the soul of a soft, silver flute. I heard—but the lark understood! Sweet, the ravaged blue myrtle's retreat. Is lost in a snow-covered wood. Your gaze—ah heaven, its tortured anamorphosis. I would forget if I could! Your song—a soft little hand on my cheek. The lark knew—had I understood! LETA SCHILLING.

WAR CAMP COMMUNITY SERVICE

Collecting Data on Soldiers

Cooperating with Missouri Historical Society in Compiling Records.

The War Camp Community Service has opened a Military History Bureau which is cooperating with the Missouri Historical Society and Adj. Gen. Harvey Clark in collecting the biographical record of every Missourian who served in the war in any rank or any branch of the service.

All men who have not already filled out questionnaires, or who are not sure that the official form was used, are asked to call at the War Camp Community Service, 108 North Fourth street, and blanks will be given them. The registration will close July 10.

Records have been collected for St. Louis County by the Missouri Historical Society, and a number of Associate Registrars were appointed by General Clark, who are asked to turn in at once all questionnaires issued by them to the Missouri Historical Society, Jefferson Memorial Building.

The Society would like also to get photographs, letters and any additional data concerning the genealogical and personal records of the men.

POSTAL CENSORSHIP TO CEASE

GRAND OPERA IN ARENA WHERE MEXICO CITY HAD BULL FIGHT

Unarmed Picador Said to Have Let Bull Lick Sugar From Hand.

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, May 24.—The Teatro El Torero, the most pretentious of bull-fight arenas, is now the home of grand opera as a result of President Carranza's decision that bull fights should cease.

Interpreting grand opera, dancers and concert artists have appeared in the arena and it is stated that these various forms of amusement will be offered until some definite action is taken as to the future of bull fighting.

It was in this arena that what is said to be one of the most remarkable spectacles in the history of the sport was staged. A bull, El Bonito, known as one of the fiercest fighters, on being brought into the arena charged and killed three horses and injured as many men without being touched by the estoque of any matador.

As the bull stood bellowing defiance and with no one apparently willing to attack him, Miguel Balla, a picador who was a spectator in one of the boxes, leaped unarmed into the enclosure. In his outstretched hand he carried two lumps of sugar which he nonchalantly offered to the bull. The animal suddenly ceased its bellowing and in a few moments docilely licked the sugar from Balla's hand. The latter returned unharmed to his box amid the plaudits of the spectators.

Here Comes the Bride Who in Dress and Walk Is Like Stage Showgirl

Richly Gowned Attendants, Their Eyes and Lips "Made Up," Give June Weddings a Touch of "Jazz" as They Swing Into March With Syncopated Step.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

NEW YORK, June 16.

AN absent-minded old gentleman strayed into church one warm June evening recently. The seats were well filled with men in evening clothes and women in wonderful evening frocks—rose, gold-color, Al-sac blue—out "backless" and sleeveless. The soft strains of "Lohengrin" were coming from the organ, and down the center aisle, just after the old gentleman was comfortably seated, advanced a procession as picturesquely brilliant as anything ever shown on the Winter Garden runway.

A sextet of lovely young women, their orchid gowns cut nearly to their deep gold girdles, their slashed skirts stopping amid-ship, purple powder deepening the artificial shadows thrown over their faces by three foot-wide hats, moved at a gait a cross between a fox-trot and a one-step. Behind them walked a taller girl, in a gown shorter, lower, more elaborate, the smile of the successful star of the show on her carefully made-up face. Automatically the old gentleman brought together his white-gloved hands with the gallant fervor he was accustomed to display nights when he occupied his usual place in the first row of the orchestra circle. A shocked "Sh-sh-sh!" from his neighbors brought him to himself. "Bless my stars!" he was heard to murmur. "This is my niece, Marjorie's, wedding. For a moment I thought I was seeing the opening chorus of 'The Girlies of 1919.'"

Perhaps it is a reaction from the haste and simplicity which have characterized the war weddings of the last two years. Whatever the reason, a quite extraordinary extravagance of costume and accessories, a distinct theatricality, what one critic has described as a "jazziness"—has hit the June weddings this season.

Add the high cost of getting married to the high cost of living. No more in New York or its neighboring suburbs does the simple, dignified, modest wedding ceremony of other days find favor. Never did the bridesmaids and other attendants wear such costly, conspicuous frocks, and after every sensational fashion of the moment and developed in startlingly brilliant colors. The bride makes the one concession to old convention by wearing white and a veil, but her dress might have been constructed for the smartest of smart dances if her wedding is an evening affair—and it usually is.

In the choice of color schemes each young woman tries to go a step further than her neighbor. Gone are the days when bridesmaids affected pinks and blues, the soft pastel shades which were dainty and charming without being flamboyant. Now gold and orchid are the favorite colors for bridal attendants. The conventional marches are still played, but there is nothing slow and stately about the bridal procession. One is reminded of the naughty old words somebody wrote for a wedding march:

"Here comes the bride—
Get on to her stride—
See how she wobbles from side to side—
Here comes the groom—
Not a moment too soon!"

The bride and her attendants do not exactly wobble, but they walk with a tripping, teetering syncopated step, which irresistibly recalls the dance hall or the chorus. They are made up like a chorus, too. To show them off properly, footlights should be set up about the space under the bridal bell and a spotlight turned on. Purple powder is used freely under the eyes to make them look bigger, noses are kaisomined white, lips are the hectic scarlet which the lavishly applied lip-stick alone produces. It is not good form for the 1919 bride to walk with her eyes meekly cast down, as in other days. She keeps them wide open, presumably to note the effect of herself and her attendant neophytes on an admiring audience.

Naturally, all this stage splendor is expensive. Father has to dig deeper into his pockets, even though his income tax be not yet paid and next year's State and national taxes are looming over the horizon. Every detail of the wedding is more elaborate and costly this year than ever before. The most expensive caterer has to provide a special menu for the wedding breakfast.

In the suburbs the progressive wedding is fashionable. For this new version of the church ceremony is held in one town; then the whole party climbs into taxicabs or private cars and motors to a neighboring town for the reception and dance. The bride's home is seldom used for this function; instead, father hires a hall or a club house where there is space—and punch—for several hundred guests.

It once was a compliment for a girl to be asked to "stand up" with a friend at her wedding. The invitation is still a compliment, but a costly one. To make the bride's specifications in the way of a costume, her friends may have to buy more expensive frocks than they ever owned before, and their similarity means that they must be changed and redecorated—with another dressmaker's bill—before they can be useful for general wear as party gowns.

The groom is expected to provide a wedding ring of expensive platinum, to match the diamond-set engagement ring, instead of the simple old circle of gold. And the high cost of getting married hits him in another way—in the gift he must make to his ushers. One New York groom recently gave gold garters to the men who "ushered" at his wedding.

Should We Save Daylight?

The Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States have both voted to repeal the daylight savings law when the clocks are turned again next October.

What are the Advantages? In Daylight Saving?

The Post-Dispatch wants to know what St. Louis thinks of the daylight savings idea, now that it has been tried out, and will publish letters from its readers on the subject from day to day.

Wants Law Abolished.

Daylight Saving Editor, The Post-Dispatch. I would like to say a few words to the daylight saving rule. I think it is the most inconvenient law for a poor working man and his family we have ever had. It compels us to retire one hour later at night, and before 10 or 11 o'clock it is too warm to sleep. Then on our block are at least 30 children that will romp and play until dark and have to retire too early to be awakened at 7 o'clock. school, when one hour would be a great deal more rest for them. The only ones that profit by it is the electric light company, as everyone has to use more lights. Hoping it will be abolished immediately, I am, respectfully,

MRS. C. C. CASS,

Favors Two Schedules.

Daylight Saving Editor, The Post-Dispatch. In taking a trip recently through some of our Western states I was struck with the utter disregard a great many rural communities show towards the daylight saving plan. As the prospects seem that the plan will probably be abolished entirely by act of Congress, why cannot those communities who find it an advantage or enterprises that favor the daylight saving plan adopt a summer schedule, one hour earlier, which would give all the beneficial results of the present law without causing inconvenience to those who cannot readily adjust themselves to the present system? Railroad schedules could be changed so as to leave a terminal at, say, 9 o'clock instead of 8 on April 1 and resume the former schedule Oct. 1. For city workers there are a great many lines in which the majority of the workers would prefer an earlier schedule during the summer season, and where these lines of business find it to their advantage to adopt the earlier hours, if the present law is discontinued, an independent movement might be started toward the adoption of summer schedules.

The Sandman Story for Tonight

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Johnnie Mouse Is Carried Away.

JOHNNIE MOUSE had decided to run away, but he had not intended to be carried off in a basket. What Johnnie had thought of was to run out of the pantry when Puss was not around and out of the kitchen door.

But before he had a chance to carry out his plan someone had come into the pantry and he had to run and hide.

He hid in a basket under a paper and the next thing he knew he felt the basket being carried out and then some things put in right on top of him and off it was carried again. So instead of running away he was carried away, and when he again had a chance to look out he found he was down in the meadow where they were making hay.

He was in the lunch basket and Johnnie knew that the best thing for him to do was to eat what he wanted at once and skedaddle.

And so he did, but instead of finding a nice, dry place to live as he expected in some big pantry, he could find nothing but hay and grass, and as fast as Johnnie thought he was nicely settled for a nap someone would come with a long fork and pick up the hay.

Of course, he had to run, and so all day he ran from one hay stack to another, until by nighttime Johnnie Mouse was so tired he was ready to go to sleep on the ground.

This is just what he did, right under a tree close up to a big stone covered with moss.

How long he slept he did not know, but he was very rudely awakened by feeling something sharp hold him tightly and poor Johnnie Mouse was sure that after all Puss had caught him.

He opened one eye a little way and took a look at his captor. It was not Puss at all, but a dreadful creature with a big bill and eyes very much like Puss.

And again Johnnie, when he would like to have run away, was being carried up and up and when he again opened his eyes he was in a tree.

So still and limp he was that Mr. Owl—for it was he that had Johnnie Mouse in his grasp—thought he was quite dead, so he put him in his house and off he flew to get something more for his breakfast, for Johnnie was a very small mouse and Mr. Owl had a big appetite.

After a while Johnnie opened both of his eyes. It was all dark and still, so he crept carefully around until he found the door and stepped out.

The moon was shining faintly through the trees and Johnnie Mouse did not see anyone to stop him this time from running away, so down the tree he scrambled and ran somewhere—he did not care where.

All night he ran, and what was his surprise in the morning to find himself right by the steps of the kitchen door, where he had stopped to rest.

When cook came to the door to let Puss out she left open and Johnnie Mouse lost no time in slipping in, and while Cook chased him with a broom she did not get him, and into his hole in the pantry he tumbled just as his mother was eating breakfast.

"Why, Johnnie Mouse," she exclaimed, "we thought Puss had you. Where have you been?"

Johnnie Mouse was ashamed to tell her he tried to run away, so he told her how he was carried off and how he escaped from Mr. Owl's house, but he was cured of wishing to run away and never again did he wander from the pantry, where he was born, and when he married he built another house in the pantry wall for his family.

So if Puss has not caught them I expect Johnnie Mouse and his little mice are still living there, and he expects in some big pantry, he could find nothing but hay and grass, and as fast as Johnnie thought he was nicely settled for a nap someone would come with a long fork and pick up the hay.

"Say, Mr. Smith," he remarked to the farmer, pointing to the haystack, "why don't they have doors and windows in it?"

"Doors and windows?" smiled the farmer. "That ain't a house, Johnnie, that's hay."

"Don't try to josh me Mr. Smith," was the scornful rejoinder. "Don't you suppose I know that hay don't grow in lumps like that?"—Minneapolis Tribune.

DANCING CRAZE SWEEPING ENGLAND

Girls Cling to War Habit of Dancing Together.

DANCING has swept English women to their feet. It is real equal rights, suffragette dancing, too. For the English women dance with each other. And the men? Oh they sit around and look on. Or don't come at all.

American women war workers returning via England from war assignments overseas have brought back the story.

"There is a positive dance craze," says Miss Mary Andersen of Hudson, Wis. "The secretary, Grace Bristow, at the head of hundreds of London clubs for girls, said it was impossible to get the girls to do much else but dance. And they seem to prefer to dance together. She told of a dance given the night before she sailed where men and women were both present and where the men sat around the side line and the girls danced with each other. And apparently every one was happy."

"Miss Bristow says it is the result of the war. Girls lived, worked and played together in cantonment and factory communities where there were only girls for so long during the war that they got the habit," says Miss Andersen.

Another result of the war on the women of England is the summer camp idea. Before the war boys of the wealthier classes went to summer camps for a military training program. It was unheard of for girls.

But the big sisters went to war by the thousands just as the big brothers did. So now the little sisters can go to camp. Why not? And camp is not only for the young girl. The business woman, having learned through the war that there were many things she could do as well as a man which she had never before dreamed of, is going to camp.

"Women have learned in four years what they had not learned in all the history of England," added Miss Andersen.

Couldn't Fool This Kid.

Johnny paid his first visit to a farm the other day. All his life he had lived in the heart of a great city, and when he suddenly came in sight of a haystack he stopped and gazed earnestly at what appeared to him as a new brand of architecture.

"Say, Mr. Smith," he remarked to the farmer, pointing to the haystack, "why don't they have doors and windows in it?"

"Doors and windows?" smiled the farmer. "That ain't a house, Johnnie, that's hay."

"Don't try to josh me Mr. Smith," was the scornful rejoinder. "Don't you suppose I know that hay don't grow in lumps like that?"—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Magnificent Ambersons

An Epic of the Rise of an American City

By BOOTH TARKINGTON.

THE five new houses, built so closely where had been the fine lawn of the Amberson Mansion, did not look new. When they were years old they looked as old as they would ever look; and two of them were vacant, having never been rented, for the Major's mistake about apartment houses had been a disastrous one. "He guessed wrong," George Amberson said. "He guessed wrong at just the wrong time! House-keeping in a house is harder than in an apartment; and where the smoke and dirt are as thick as they are in the addition, women can't stand it. People were crazy for apartments—too bad he couldn't have seen it in time. Poor man! he digs away at his ledger by his clock and drop-light lamp almost every night—he still refuses to let the Mansion be torn up for wiring, you know. But he had one painful satisfaction this spring: he got his taxes lowered."

Amberson laughed ruefully, and Fanny Minafer asked how the Major could have managed such an economy. "They were sitting upon the veranda at Isabel's one evening during the third summer of the absence of their nephew and his mother; and the conversation had turned toward Amberson finances."

"I said it was a 'painful satisfaction,' Fanny," he explained. "The property has gone down in value, and they assessed it lower than they did 15 years ago."

"But farther out!" "Oh, yes, 'farther out!' Prices are magnificent 'farther out,' and farther in, too! We just happen to be the wrong spot, that's all. Next time I don't think something could be done if father would let me have a hand; but he won't. He can't. I suppose I ought to say, 'He's always done his own figuring,' as says; and it's his lifelong habit to keep his affairs, and even his books, to himself, and just hand us out the money. Heaven knows he's done enough of that!"

He sighed, and both were silent, looking out at the long flares of the constantly passing automobile headlights, shifting in vast geometric demonstrations against the darkness. Now and then a bicycle wound its nervous way among these portents, or, at long intervals, a surrey or buggy plodded forlornly by.

"There seem to be so many ways of making money nowadays," Fanny said thoughtfully. "Every day I hear of a new fortune some person has got hold of, one way or another—nearly always it's somebody you never heard of. It doesn't seem to be in just making motor cars; I hear there's a great deal in manufacturing these things that motor cars use."

"So have I," Fanny admitted. "He seemed to be certain it would pay 25 per cent the first year, and enormously more after that; and I'm only getting four on my little principal. People are making such enormous fortunes out of everything to do with motor cars, it does seem as if."

She paused. "Well, I told him I'd think it over seriously."

"We may turn out to be partners and millionaires then," Amberson laughed. "I thought I'd ask Eugene's advice."

"I wish you would," said Fanny. "He probably knows exactly how much profit there would be in this."

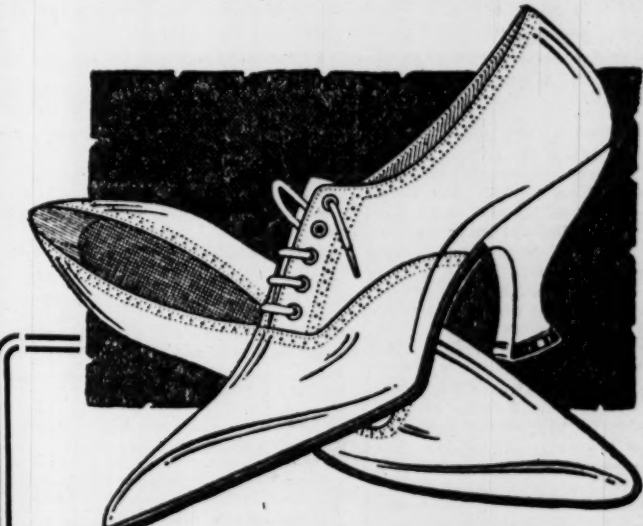

Eugene's advice was to "go slow," he thought electric lights for automobiles were "coming—some day," but probably not until certain difficulties could be overcome. Altogether, he was discouraging, but by this time his two friends "had the fever," as thoroughly as old Frank Bronson himself had it; for they had been with Bronson's in a machine shop. They were already enthusiastic, and after asking Eugene's opinion they argued with him, telling him how they had seen with their own eyes that the difficulties he mentioned had been overcome. "Perfectly!" Fanny cried. "And if it worked in the shop it's bound to work any place else, isn't it?"

He would not agree that it was "bound to"—yet, being pressed, was driven to admit that "it might," and, retiring from what was developing into an oral contest, repeated a warning about not "putting too much into it."

Colombia Reach Expected to End Tied Relations

Report Favorably New Colombia $25,000,000 Canal Zone.

In press the treaty through the American Senate, but unsuccessfully. Senator Lodge, intimate friend of Roosevelt, would not permit the treaty to be ratified, as he could command more than one-third of the membership of the Senate, even though his party was in the minority.

Now, Lodge, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has declined the amendments which would be acceptable to him, and one of them was an elimination of thelogg clause.

Acting Secretary of State Polk and Senator Lodge and Knox have been frequent conference, and the position of the Senate was made clear the Colombian Government, who has accepted all the amendments, eliminations and changes proposed.

Colombia Satisfied.

Colombia would have liked it better if the treaty had contained an expression of regret, but is satisfied cause two administrations, Republican as well as Democratic, actually signed such a document and submitted it to the American Senate, far as Colombia is concerned, it considers this action on the part of the executive branch of our government as sufficient expression of a desire of the United States Government as well as an overwhelming majority of American citizens.

The payment of the $25,000,000 is itself compensation which Colombia will consider arises from the payment she received in 1903. No one will be able to prevent Colombia from construing the $25,000,000 or any other sum of money as confirmation of her views.

But throughout Latin-America the importance of a settlement of the Colombian controversy cannot be exaggerated. Latin-Americans have usually pointed to the Panama episode as a proof of so-called American hypocrisy, in professing to be the champion of weak nations, and then taking advantage of them.

The repeal of the tolls provided in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain was an instance, however, of ungrudging generosity in interpretation of a most point in a treaty and Senator Lodge's report supported that action vehemently.

16 Years to Right Wrong.

Today it falls to Senator Lodge of Massachusetts again to take a stand which corrects a wrong impression throughout Central and South America. It means that next door to the Panama canal the United States will not have a potential foe at a friend, and that commercial relations between Colombia and ourselves which have been impeded for 16 years will now be assisted and stimulated.

The $25,000,000 is to be expended for public works in Colombia, and one who it was announced that contracts for materials and work were to be given to firms in the United States. It may have taken 16 years to right a wrong, but the United States will have done so nevertheless and the record of this country will have been duly corrected.

GRAND OPERA IN ARENA WHERE MEXICO CITY HAD BULL FIGHT

Tharmed Pleador Said to Have Let Bull Lick Sugar From Hand in Ring.

MEXICO CITY, May 24.—The teatro El Toro, once one of the most pretentious of bull-fight arenas, is now the home of grand opera as a result of President Carranza's decree that bull fights should cease, interspersing grand opera, dances and concert artists have appeared in the arena and it is stated that these various forms of amusement will be offered until some definite action is taken as to the future of bull fighting.

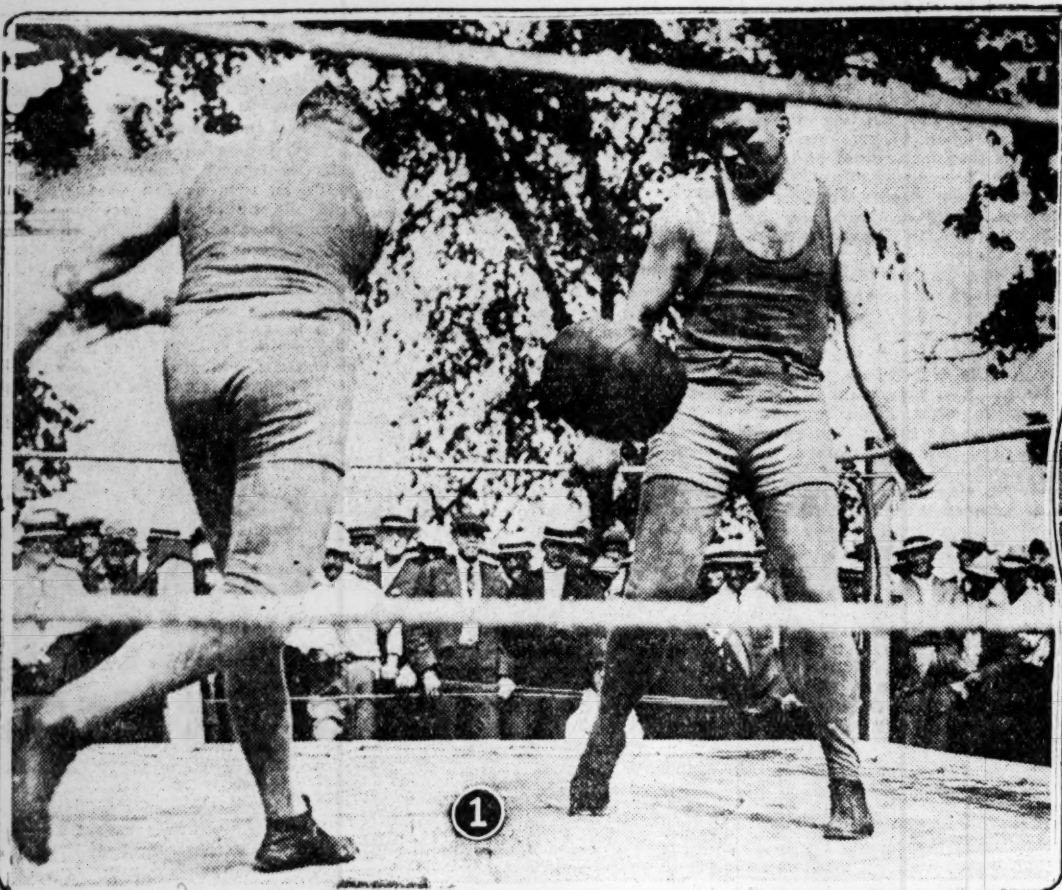

It was in this arena that what is said to be one of the most remarkable spectacles in the history of the port was staged. A bull, El Bonito, known as one of the fiercest fighters, on being brought into the arena charged and killed three horses and injured as many men without being touched by the estoque of any matador.

As the bull stood bellowing defiance and with one apparently willing to attack him, Miguel Ballo, a pleader who was a spectator in one of the boxes, leaped unarmed into the enclosure. In his outstretched hand he carried two lumps of sugar which he nonchalantly offered to the bull. The animal suddenly ceased its bellowing and in a few moments docilely licked the sugar from Ballo's hand. The latter returned unharmed to his box amid the plaudits of the spectators.

Wolff Has Fine Chance to Reach Western Golf Final

Local Player's Wonderful Form in W. G. A. Event Makes Him Logical Choice in Third Round Today—Bockenkamp Meets Strong Foe in Standish of Detroit.

Clarence Wolff, St. Louis, was 5 up on J. S. Thompson, New Orleans; Richard Bockenkamp, St. Louis, was 1 up on J. D. Standish of Detroit; L. D. Bromfield of Denver was 1 up on Rudolph Knepper of Sioux City, and Harry Legg of Minneapolis was 3 up on C. G. Waldo of Detroit, at the end of the first 18 holes of the third round of the Western golf championship, played this morning at Sunset Hill Country Club.

BY STUART G. STORNEY, St. Louis District Golf Champion. St. Louis has excellent chance of having a man in the final of the Western golf championship at Sunset Hill Country Club, Saturday, and there is a possibility of two St. Louis golfers getting as far as the final match. It would be the first time the city had a contestant in the title since Henry B. Allen was runner-up in his match with Mason W. Phelps at Rock Island, several years ago; and if two St. Louisans struggle for the highest honors of the association, it will be the first time in the history of the event.

In Richard E. Bockenkamp and Clarence Wolff St. Louis has two famous representatives. Wolff surprised yesterday when he defeated Nelson Whitney, the new Trans-Mississippi champion, rather easily, 5 up and 4. Bockenkamp won his match when Donald Edwards had to forfeit because of a collapse from heat prostration, after five holes of the afternoon round. Edwards complained at the end of the morning round, and wanted to concede the match to Bockenkamp then. The match was all square, however, and when clouds hid the sun, and it became cooler, Edwards' friends persuaded him to continue. Bockenkamp won the first five holes, Edwards frequently having to ask his opponent to point out objectives. Edwards was four up on Bockenkamp at the middle of the morning play.

Other Second Round Results. In the other championship matches Harry G. Legg of Minneapolis defeated T. B. Griffith of Wichita, 11 and 10; C. G. Waldo of Detroit won from Frank Leach of Louisville, 6 and 5; J. D. Standish of Detroit won from Allan Leach of Chicago, 2 up and 1; R. E. Knepper of Sioux City won from Sam Reynolds of Omaha, 2 up and 1; L. D. Bromfield of Denver eliminated J. E. Nugent of Kansas City, 4 up and 3.

Today's matches will bring together Wolff and Thompson, Legg and Waldo, Standish and Bockenkamp and Knepper and Bromfield. Explanation of Whitney's defeat can be made without detracting from the praise due Wolff for his splendid play. Wolff played excellent golf and it was more his improvement than it was Whitney's falling from form that caused the outcome.

Whitney has just been through a grueling series of matches, all of which were played under terrific strain. It was evident that he was not feeling his best physically and in this hot weather, which is unprecedented in its duration and severity, it was not surprising that he should weaken.

Donald Edwards Collapses. When Donald Edwards, a tournament player of great strength and a man of more than average physical strength, collapsed, it is evident that the weather is strength-taking. If the weather does not change the tournament truly will develop into a test of endurance rather than a match of golfing ability. In the match today the humidity was intense everywhere and especially when the course led into the valleys breathing was difficult.

Wolff must be praised. He always has been a great golfer at qualifying, but in this tournament he has shown something new. He has shown the ability to stand up under terrific strain. He has eliminated two terrific notch golfers in Warren K. Wood and Nelson Whitney. Bromfield's defeat of Nugent shows that the Colorado champion has turned to form and must be reckoned as a likely title contender. The Denver golfer played the first nine holes of the afternoon round in 32.3 under par, establishing a course record for the half round.

Notable is the way Chicago entrants have fallen by the wayside in the tournament. Wood, Paul Gardner, Paul Hunter, Allan Leach, Elliot Evans and finally Donald Edwards have been eliminated and the city's championship flight of contenders from that city.

Six Preliminaries to Precede Title Battle; First Starts at 10 A. M.

TOLEDO, O., June 19.—Fifty-four scheduled rounds of boxing will precede the 12-round heavy-weight championship contest between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey here July 4. It was announced today by Ad Q. Thacher, matchmaker of the Toledo Athletic Club.

The complete card of preliminaries follows: 10 a. m.—Tommy O'Boyle of Toledo vs. Solly Epstein of Indianapolis, 8 rounds at 116 pounds. 10:40 a. m.—"Wop" English of Toledo vs. "Whirlwind" Wondt of the United States Army, 8 rounds, at 135 pounds. 11:30 a. m.—Johnny Lewis of Toledo vs. Tommy Long of Detroit, 10 rounds, at 135 pounds. 12:30 p. m.—Johnny Rose of Toledo vs. Battling Ballers of the United States Army, 8 rounds, at 135 pounds. 1 p. m.—Jack Malone of St. Paul vs. Navy Balston of Joliet, 10 rounds, at 145 pounds. 2 p. m.—Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., vs. Carl Tremaine of Detroit, 10 rounds, at 118 pounds.

CHAMPIONSHIPS. Third Round. Clarence Wolff, Sunset Hill, St. Louis, vs. J. S. Thompson, New Orleans, C. C. Harry Legg, Minneapolis, vs. C. G. Waldo, Detroit. J. D. Standish, Detroit, vs. Richard Bockenkamp, Forest Park G. C., St. Louis. Rudolph Knepper, Sioux City, C. C., vs. L. D. Bromfield, Denver C. C.

The matches today between Knepper and Bromfield and Bockenkamp and Standish should be the best of the round. Knepper and Bromfield have been shooting exceptionally good golf.

Whitney's Putting Weak. Wolff and Whitney finished the first 18 holes yesterday with the St. Louis golfer two up. The eighteen-hole hole was won by Wolff and it was a striking example of Whitney's weakness throughout the match. He missed a short putt that would have given him a halved hole. Fine and again in the afternoon when putts of 4 feet or less meant victories for Whitney or at worst halved holes, the New Orleans golfer fell down. Starting the afternoon round, he was 2 up on Wolff. The next three holes were halved and two of them should have been won by Whitney. On the sixth hole Whitney rallied and cut down Wolff's lead to three, but when Wolff got a "birdie" on the seventh he was again 4 up. The next two holes before the turn were halved, Wolff making the nine in 37 while Whitney took 39.

Whitney was weakening fast and had no accuracy on his lay-up shots. The New Orleans golfer's usual easy swing with the putter was not in evidence. On the tenth he dubbed his nip shot from the edge of the green. Wolff had sent his first shot five feet past the pin and when Whitney took four to hole out the St. Louisan had two shots to hole in with a "three." This made him five up. The next hole was halved in three and Whitney again cut down the lead when he holed in four, while Wolff got into the rough on each side of the fairway and took five to sink his ball.

Wolff Makes Remarkable Shot. Wolff negotiated the most sensational shot of the match on the thirteenth green. His second was in the rough on the hillside running down from the green. Whitney also was short on the green, but he tried to him dead to the cup and it looked like the tide had turned as the hole would have put Wolff's lead to three with five more to play. Wolff studied the lay of the turf and his shot from the rough was straight as a ball could roll into a billiard pocket. It gave Wolff a five-hole lead.

Whitney again faltered on a putt on the fourteenth hole and saved the match from being prolonged. After Wolff had missed a short putt for a five and the gallery was preparing to cheer, Whitney's putt for a four was a masterpiece. He made the putt and the match was over.

Notable is the way Chicago entrants have fallen by the wayside in the tournament. Wood, Paul Gardner, Paul Hunter, Allan Leach, Elliot Evans and finally Donald Edwards have been eliminated and the city's championship flight of contenders from that city.

WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP DIAMOND BELT FUND IS PLAN OF BOXING BOARD

A letter to the Post-Dispatch signed by the "Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control" announced that a fund has been launched the proceeds of which will be devoted to the purchase of a diamond belt emblematic of the world's heavyweight ring championship. The fund is international and Lord Loucheur, one of the most widely known of British sportsmen, headed the English fund with $500.

In this Maj. Anthony Drexel-Biddle and Tex Rickard each contributed $500, as a starter. The conditions under which the belt is to be donated will compel the title holder to accept legitimate challenges. It is stated in the letter that both Willard and Dempsey have formally agreed to abide to the conditions under which the belt is to be donated.

HICKEY SEES FIST FIGHT AT KANSAS CITY GAMES

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—A fist fight between John Gangel, manager of the Kansas City team, and Bradley Koehler, catcher for Louisville, marked yesterday's game between Louisville and Kansas City. The contest was delayed frequently by the protesting of decisions. In the seventh inning, Koehler threw his mark to second base and was ejected by Umpire Murray. As Koehler passed Manager Gangel, coaching off first, they moved and several blows were exchanged before they were separated by other players. President Thomas H. Hickey witnessed the melee from the grand stand.

Sisler's Leaping Catch Saves Game for Burke's Crew

First Sacker Goes Far Into Air and Robs Pinch-Hitter Caldwell of a Hit.

BOSTON, June 19.—Urban Shockley will pitch this afternoon for the Browns and chances are that he will draw "Babe" Ruth as his opponent. Ruth has been playing a wretched fielding game in left field for the Red Sox, has not been pitching very well, because his fast ball is only lukewarm, but has been hammering the ball most viciously. The Browns won yesterday, 3-2, scoring all their runs in the fifth.

The upward climb of the Browns, and they seem to have an easy time getting the bulge on the waning champions of the world, should not be stopped by Ruth, because the big fellow's arm has not been helped by the throwing to the plate from left field one day and then pitching the next. Babe got two hits off Allan Soxton yesterday.

Quinn and Barrow Confer. Business Manager Bob Quinn of the Browns and Owner H. H. Frazee and Manager Ed Barrow of the Sox had a talk here last night. Usually this would mean trades and Quinn already has the reputation as a trader in the American League, whereas many believe that Frazee and Barrow, a mite panicky over the sliding average of the Sox, may be kidded into letting go of some real valuable men.

When the Sox were in St. Louis last month Barrow looked fondly on Baby Doll Jacobson, who at that time was hitting everything in sight. But now the chances are that Barrow has been talking in terms of a good right-handed pitcher.

George Sisler gets an extra generous hand here, and today he will be applauded every time he goes to the plate, just as the Beantown bugs applaud their darling, Big Baby Ruth. George Sisler pulled a play of the century yesterday in the ninth inning, just before Jimmy Austin applied the hidden ball on Willie Schang at third base for the last out of the game. "Sis" went high up into the air and came down with a sailing drive off Caldwell's bat. It would have been a double against any other first sacker in either league.

Sisler Pulls Star Play. What a picture that would have been for the cover of the baseball record book. Without exaggeration he must have gone up four feet in a straight ascension, and had to do it so rapidly that he had no time to gather himself together for the leap. It was a startling exhibition of just what an admirable combination he is of the mental and physical qualities that go to make the perfect athlete. Boston likes him better than Cobb, his big foe in the chase for A. L. batting honors.

STAPP MAY MEET MAGILL AT SPRINGFIELD JULY 4

Charley Stapp, the local boxer, who last Tuesday night knocked out Ora Dean of Kansas City in the second of a scheduled 10-round bout at Springfield, Mo., may meet Art Magill on Independence day. Stapp, upon his return yesterday, stated that officials of the Frisco A. C. of Springfield were at present trying to arrange the match.

Stapp also said that he had a bout with Bobby Vaughn at Fort Worth, Tex., in view for a later date. He is anxious to show, before one of the local clubs.

John McGraw Says Cardinals Are Contenders for Pennant

Knot-Holers Are Speediest Aggregation in National League and Are to Be Feared by All Clubs, Giants' Leader Says—Benton and Schupp, Tamed, 5-2.

THAT he rated the Cardinals as the speediest team in the National League and one which he feared as a pennant contender was an admission made to the Post-Dispatch at Cardinal Field yesterday by John J. McGraw, the crafty leader of the New York Giants, the current attraction at Cardinal Field.

Before the start of the Cardinals-Giants contest, the big feature of the benefit program of the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society, this question was put to McGraw: "What do you think of the St. Louis team?"

He was quick to answer: "It's not only the speediest club in our league, but one that has to be feared not only by the Giants but by every other club that has designs on the pennant."

To emphasize his remarks, McGraw came back with this query: "And why shouldn't the Cardinals be dangerous?"

Club Owns Smart Players. Answering his own question, he said: "The club is not only a fast one but is a smart one. For instance, take players like Miller, Stock, Hornsby, Shotton, Snyder and this new fellow, Clemens. They all are experienced players who know what to do at the proper time."

"I am not saying that the Cardinals form a good team, that they are in the midst of a winning streak. I said it before the season opened and am quite positive that I was quoted as saying this same thing. The club got off to a poor start because of that automobile accident."

"But the players are now apparent. I said it before the season opened and am quite positive that I was quoted as saying this same thing. The club got off to a poor start because of that automobile accident."

Likes Cardinal infield. McGraw also expressed his admiration for the Cardinal infield. "I have not seen the new combination in operation," said the Giant leader. He was talking before the game began. "But with Paulette at first, Miller at second, Hornsby at short and Stock at third, the combination was a good one. The new one with Lavan at short is doubtless better or Mr.iskey would be using it. That's only natural, isn't it?"

"I have never seen Lavan in action. I know what his baseball men record was and what baseball men have told me of him. He's a great player on the defensive and a dangerous man at bat with the score a

CHAMPION'S HANDS TAPE

Broken Bones Menace Is Guarded Against by Bandages and Very Heavy Gloves.

By ROBERT EDGREN.

Copyright, 1919, by Press Publishing Co. TOLEDO, O., June 19.—Jess Willard wrapped his hands in layers of soft tape yesterday afternoon. The fellow hit so hard yesterday that Tex Rickard got a letter from him with a little good advice. "I see, Jess has been going about training in a rough and ready fashion, managing himself and acting his own trainer, so he hasn't let anyone to tell him where to be careful and what not to do. He is boxed for the past seven weeks without putting even a strip of tape around his large and valuable mitts. When Tex found out about it a couple of days ago he exhibited symptoms of heart failure. That is, near heart failure as a chilled, nervous guy like Rickard can come. That's the only thing left on earth that I have to worry about," said Tex. "The only thing I can see that could possibly cause any trouble is an accident. Willard is wearing those big 16-ounce gloves, a Dempsey is taking a rest. It looks so good it's almost impossible. Of course, I'm carrying $50,000 each Willard's and Dempsey's hands—identical insurance—but that would only a drop in the bucket anything happened. Guess I'll be out in the morning and look 'em over again."

So, when Jess appeared in the ring at 2:30 he had his hands taped and bandaged as if he were going into a scrap. He put on the big 16-ounce gloves, too. This day Willard boxed his usual eight rounds, letting up a little on yesterday's 11-round spurt. He boxed five rounds with Jess Monahan, Chip and Hejnen, alternating to give his sparring staff a chance for a rest.

Heisen Roughly Treated. This boy Heisen, being fresher than the regulars, is getting the best work. He is some joker. Stand in the corner before he began to box. Heisen was taking care that "Send the flowers to Chicago." "I all know my address over there," meaning was, clear when Willard started. The big fellow sure tossed 'em into this Heisen lad. He shot a short right to his chin and Heisen was down. Heisen was treated for a quart in camp. Heisen says he likes it. Heisen was on the champion's chin body during the two rounds.

Up at the other camp Jimmy Ford was taking care that Dempsey doesn't over train. At the same time Jimmy is making sure that Dempsey doesn't get into any playing too hard. They've taken away his rowboat. "Do you know what I think?" said Ford. "I think he's getting a nervous feeling that bothers him when he thinks of those million dollar knuckles that might accidentally crack if landed on a hard head. What happens to Jack he isn't going to get into any more of that. He's on a fishtrap. Not while Jack can slip out at night and cop the while Jack is asleep."

Oh, yes, to finish the day's work Dempsey shadow boxed two rounds and did his daily stint of breathing exercises. Heisen was taking care that he could punch that bag he perhaps he wouldn't break the ropes on the light punching. If he could punch that bag he perhaps he wouldn't break the ropes on the light punching. If he could punch that bag he perhaps he wouldn't break the ropes on the light punching. If he could punch that bag he perhaps he wouldn't break the ropes on the light punching.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

A TIP TO POETS.

Ye poets, sing a lulling lay
Accompanied by pipe or tabor (Whichever you know how to play)
About the dignity of labor.
Remark the laborer's massive hands,
Which he could hide a rabbit under,
And muscles, strong as iron bands
(Where have I heard that line, I wonder?)
Observe that workers should be glad
To own a neat, but tidy hovel,
But never sing it to a lad
Who earns his bread with pick and shovel.

Ye poets, also sing the charm
Of trees that sigh and brooks that prattle
Of life upon the dear old farm,
Of cows, and other forms of cattle,
Of homing sheep at eventide
That let the gentle shepherds fold 'em,
Of gaping pigs, some can't abide,
(As Shylock said) when they behold 'em!
Pen poems to the rural swain
And how he loves his rustic charmer,
But never sing this glad refrain
By any chance to any farmer!

Ye poets, sing of city men
And how they love to wear white collars,
And dine on Broadway now and then
For seventy or eighty dollars.
Recite the joys of subway strife
Where all the trains are run through cellars
And say that busy urban life
Is pretty soft for city dwellers!
Put all the wonderful romance
Of thronging millions in your ditty
But never sing it, on a chance
To anybody from a city!
